HITLER MAKES 'FINAL' OFFER, REJECTION BY ALLIES SEEN

Here Are Highlights of Hitler's 'Peace' Speech to Reichstag

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Highlights of Chancellor Hitler's reichstag address:

Revisions of the Versailles treaty that have been carried out cannot be changed again. Therefore the world is confronted with the question "Why should war now occur on the western front?"

The aim of the German government in the east is . . . a Reich border based upon historical, ethnological and economic conditions. . . Reorganization in accordance with nationalities and solution of minority problems (this refers not only to Poland but also to southern and southeastern European countries.)

Further aims are: An attempt to solve the Jewish problem. . . Reconstruction of economic life. . . Guarantees of security of the entire territories involved. . .

Germany has no demands against England with exception of the colonial problem, an issue that can be solved without resort to force.

A grandiose success (in Poland) has been achieved by our forces. Although the Polish soldiers themselves fought most valiantly, the behavior of their leaders remain absolutely inexcusable.

A pre-requisite of prosperity is restoration of absolutely guaranteed peace. . . possible not only by means of a definite establishment of the European status quo, but primarily by reduction of armaments.

We must succeed in drawing up rules for the use of airplanes, poison gas, submarines and contraband so that war may be stripped of its terrible character of a battle against women, children and non-combatants.

All nations on the continent. . . must meet together and draft a comprehensive statute establishing a feeling of security and appeasement, and therewith will come peace. But such conference will be impossible until the thunder of cannons cease.

Continuation of the present situation on the western front is unthinkable. . . One day France may bombard Saarbrucken and the German artillery take revenge by destroying Mulhousie. Then France will bombard Karlsruhe and Germany will destroy Strasbourg, and so on. . . What is no longer reachable by guns will be destroyed by planes.

This destructive struggle will not be confined to the continent of Europe—it will stretch overseas.

But someday the border will be restored between Germany and France, with the sole difference that flourishing cities will have been replaced by ruins and gigantic cemeteries.

Calls for Peace Conference or 'War to Finish'

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Adolf Hitler offered his "final" peace terms to Europe today, but the allies, whom he threatened with warfare reaching into everybody's backyard if they rejected, were quick to accept the challenge by turning down his proposals.

The alternative Hitler said, was a finish fight which would be a "triumph of destruction."

A conference of nations to achieve peace, security and economic readjustment in favor of the totalitarian bloc; a plea for friendship with Great Britain and France; a vague offer of disarmament and humanization of warfare; creation of a rump Polish state; solution of the Jewish problem; and restoration of German colonies were the chief points in Hitler's proposal for peace on his own terms.

Addressing his Nazi reichstag, Hitler warned the allies:

"If peace and security are not achieved . . . then this will be my last declaration. We will then fight. Neither force of arms nor time will conquer Germany. There will be no second November 18 . . . We shall fight and I am certain that we shall be victorious . . . The history of the world does not record a war with two victors. But often there have been two vanquished."

Hitler said that Germany and Russia would stand together, that Nazism could not be crushed, that Germany was indivisible.

In what seemed to be a hint for an armistice, he remarked that a conference of nations such as he had proposed would be impossible "under the roar of cannon."

The chancellor took great pains to emphasize that he was bidding for peace not because of weakness but because of strength. Why fight any longer? he asked. The great nations would have to get together eventually; why not now?"

"If the war is not called off now," he said, "everybody should realize that war and all that it means will strike in everybody's back yard . . . I can only pray that God Almighty may inspire the leaders of the world, so that they will help in bringing about peace. Let all those who are of like mind now speak up so that peace may be brought about."

Talks With Speed.

Hitler made his long-awaited speech before leaders of the government, the fighting forces and the 850-odd members of the Reichstag in the Kroll Opera House which had been the meeting place since the burning of the Reichstag in 1933 which at the time the Nazis blamed on Communist enemies. He rattled off his speech at unusual speed, vigorously and without emotional interludes, reading from his prepared text, to the thundering cheers of his Nazis. The chancellor wore the grey uni-

Navy Acts After Nazis Say Ship's to Be Sunk

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Navy and coast guard craft sped today toward a mid-Atlantic rendezvous with the American liner Iroquois, after the White House disclosed receipt of startling information that the refugee-laden steamship was to be sunk.

The tip came from the head of the German navy, but it left unanswered the question of how and why and by whom the sinking was to be done. Likewise, it offered no explanation of how the reich acquired the information.

The White House disclaimed any belief in the report. Nevertheless, several naval ships and a coast guard cutter were rushed to accompany the Iroquois to New York, where she is due next Wednesday. The captain was ordered to search the ship for explosives and to double his lookouts and patrol watchmen.

The Iroquois, a 6,209 ton vessel, left Cobh, Ireland, on Tuesday with a crew of 212 and 584 passengers. Ambassador Kennedy said in London last night that only those who were able to prove American citizenship had been permitted to book passage.

The vessel was chartered by the United States lines to bring home Americans caught in Europe by the outbreak of war. Formerly, it was in the coastwise trade between New York, Florida and Texas.

The navy declined to divulge the names or number of the ships racing toward the Iroquois. It also kept secret the latter's position.

The White House statement issued late yesterday said:

"Yesterday the head of the German navy, Grand Admiral Raeder, officially informed the American government, through the United States naval attache (Commander A. E. Schraeder) in Berlin, that according to information on which WARNS OF ACTS AGAINST U. S.

Pittman Declares 'Inevitable Defeat' Waits Nations for Warlike Actions.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev., of the senate foreign relations committee said today that if any European nation or group of nations commits certain "deliberate and unquestionable acts of war" against the United States, "they would invite their own inevitable defeat."

In an interview, Pittman emphasized that he believed "this congress will never vote to send any American soldiers abroad in this war" although "we would resist" certain acts of war. He mentioned bombing of American industrial plants as an example.

He said he was certain also that this congress "will never appropriate money for the purpose of mobilizing or training any soldiers to participate in war abroad."

"I am fully aware," he said, "that a foreign government could commit acts of war upon our country, such as bombing our industrial plants. I know that we would resist such acts of war. I know that we would authorize the use of all of our economic and financial powers and indomitable navy to stop and punish such warlike action.

"I must say that I do not think any European nation or group of nations would be so foolish as to

BLAMES CRIME WAVE ON TOO MUCH LENIENCY

Chief Contends Courts Should 'Crack Down' on Youthful Law Violators.

Mansfield's juvenile crime wave of recent weeks was blamed today "on too much leniency in the courts" by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

The chief spoke in reference to a two-month old "siege" of child crime in which several youths, the oldest of which was 16, were apprehended.

Property loss through vandalism, chief offense in the current depredations, has run into hundreds of dollars. Numerous acts of petty thievery also have contributed to the wave of juvenile crime.

Bates charged that leniency shown juvenile violators when they are brought into court has in many cases resulted in a repetition of offense. Out of the gang of youthful burglars recently arrested, several were "repeaters," he said.

Keep Returning Offenders.

He added that there was little police could do to check petty thievery and burglaries other than keep returning the offenders to juvenile court. A more severe attitude toward juvenile crime is needed by the courts if progress is to be made in breaking up boy gangs, he contends.

"As I see it," Bates said, "the only solution is for the courts to crack down on some of these cases, but I am not running the courts nor can I tell them how to handle their business."

He contends that with leniency shown as it is that many of the boys apparently are willing to "take a second chance with the court."

Of three youths arraigned before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court last week for looting automobiles and burglarizing several homes, one, a "repeater" was sent to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster while the other two were placed on probation.

Warn U. S. Ship To Be Sunk

The S. S. Iroquois, American coastal steamer now en route from Ireland to United States with a capacity load of American refugees, is to be sunk, according to a warning sent the United States government by Grand Admiral Erich Raeder of the German navy. The warning, which was revealed in a statement by President Roosevelt, said the American ship was to be sunk by "a nation now at war with Germany," leaving the inference that Britain would.

HUNT TURNS TO CRAWFORD FOR CHILD MOLESTER

Police Trace Auto License In Search for Owner of Coupe; Woman Routs Assailant.

Search for the middle-aged man who lured an eight-year-old Mansfield girl into his automobile Wednesday and drove into the country before releasing her, unharmed, turned toward Crawford county today.

Mansfield police were tracing an automobile license given to them in an effort to obtain a more tangible clue as to the identity of the owner of the "old coupe."

One license number clue fizzled out late yesterday. Police traced the number to Norwalk, and established that the owner of the car bearing that license could not have been involved in the case.

Meanwhile, police had an attempted assault case on their hands today, which occurred last night, only a block from where the eight-year-old child was picked up Wednesday. There apparently was no connection between the two cases, however.

Miss Ora B. Lanzendorfer, 197 West Fifth street, reported to police that she had fought off and driven away a young man who attempted to molest her on Bowman street near the B. and O. crossing.

She said the man, who appeared to be about 25 and roughly dressed, approached her as she walked toward her home shortly after dark and told her to "come along" with him.

She refused, she said, and struck the man over the head with her purse when he grabbed her arm, whereupon he released her and fled east along the tracks.

Schoolboy patrols at all buildings kept a close look-out today for suspicious-looking automobiles and police patrolled the vicinity of all buildings while children went to and from school, to prevent any further abductions.

The one reported Wednesday was the eighth in Mansfield and the vicinity in the past four months.

ROAR GREETINGS

Cincinnati Brings Out Bands to Cheer Reds' Arrival.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— To the blaring of bands, the cheers of thousands and the raucous blasts of whistles tied down, the champion Reds and their arch-rivals, The New York Yanks, invaded Cincinnati today.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, stepped from one of four special trains, sporting a new pork-pie hat; short-statured Mayor F. H. LaGuardia was all but hidden from view in the jam.

Reds' Manager Bill McKechnie was confident after two defeats. "We'll bet 'em yet," he said. The teams resume play tomorrow.

Many of the Reds "ducked" the din by leaving their special in suburban Winton Place and East Norwood.

DEPOSITS HIT PEAK

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Deposits in Cleveland's five largest banks today totaled $819,977,066, largest since the all-time peak of $1,026,000,000 of December, 1930.

GETS 3 YEARS

Bergdoll Faces Seven Years At Hard Labor In Prison.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Seven and one half years of hard labor as a military prisoner is the penalty Grover Cleveland Bergdoll must pay for dodging service in the American army during the World war.

The pudgy middle-aged prisoner smiled when his punishment was fixed at three years instead of the maximum sentence of five and one half years. He also still has four and one half years to go on the 5-year sentence for draft evasion.

'WITCH' GUILTY

Admits Poison Murder of Mate With Insurance Motive.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Mrs. Providenza Miccichi, called the "witch" in Philadelphia's murder-for-insurance ring, halted her trial today by pleading guilty to indictments charging her with the poison murder of Mrs. Jennie Cassetti, 37-year-old mother of six children.

The court will hear testimony to fix the degree of the crime and the punishment later.

On trial since Tuesday, Mrs. Miccichi was the fourth person to halt trial with a guilty plea. So far 12 persons have been convicted or pleaded guilty to murder.

Twelve still are to go on trial for deaths charged to the mass murder ring, blamed by investigators for "50 to 100" killings.

Government's Your Creature, New Citizens Told at Reception

You are now a part of a government that is a creature of yours rather than one that makes you a submissive creature of it, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch told 61 new citizens at a reception for them last night at the American Legion home.

The new citizens, representing 13 nationalities, received their naturalization papers from Fred R. Zellner, county clerk of courts. With the certificate of citizenship each member of the group also received a small American flag, a gift of the Legion auxiliary, and a copy of "Our Country," the little booklet published recently by The News-Journal.

The guests at the party were approved for citizenship last week by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court.

Drawing a contrast between the United States and the dictatorial states of Europe, Judge Kalbfleisch pointed out that this country lets its citizens help mold the governmental policies while in most European nations, one man forms the government and the people are merely his subjects.

Urging the group of new citizens to study the Constitution and Bill of Rights to learn the fundamentals of Americanism, Judge Kalbfleisch advised: "Don't make the mistake that many native Americans make of forgetting the Constitution and the things for which it stands."

Representing the Legion auxiliary which sponsored the reception, Mrs. W. L. Beckley, past department president of the auxiliary, asked the group to "Uphold the things that have made our nation possible—the fundamentals that have met every national need and peril since the country was founded.

"The great need today is faith in the principles of democracy to combat the theories that are being tried in Europe, the theories which failed 1,000 years ago and are still failing," she said.

Ten of the 61 who received their papers last night came to this country from Germany and the majority of them are natives of Central European and Balkan countries. Three were from Poland, 23 from Yugoslavia, nine from Rumania and three from Czechoslovakia. Six were English, Scotch and Canadian, while two were native American women who lost their citizenship by marrying foreign-born men previous to 1922.

CRITICIZES BAN

Radio Executive Calls Rule Menace to 'Free Speech.'

CLEVELAND —(AP)— John F. Patt, vice president of Radio Stations WJR in Detroit and WGAR here, sees the rule recently adopted by the code committee of the National Association of Broadcasters as a step "in the direction of censorship and abridgement of free speech."

The committee adopted a rule to prevent "spokesmen of controversial public issues" from purchasing radio time. E. M. Kirby, secretary of the association, said Father Coughlin was mentioned repeatedly in the long discussion preceding adoption of the rule.

ALLIES: London And Paris Call Proposals Inacceptable

(By United Press)

LONDON—Adolf Hitler's speech to the reichstag failed to offer any basis for peace, high political sources indicated today after brief study of the German proposals.

Hitler's speech was carefully studied by members of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's war cabinet and probably will be debated in parliament, as Chamberlain promised.

But well-informed circles expressed confidence that the government and parliament as well

PARIS—Adolf Hitler's proposals for restoration of European peace are "wholly inacceptable," highest French sources said today in asserting that the Nazi fuehrer had attempted to "dictate" an end to the war.

Hitler is seeking merely to give Russia and Germany a free hand in eastern and central Europe and offering nothing substantial in exchange for colonies and trade advantages except his own promise—often broken in the past—to

TRIUMPH: Hitler Enters Warsaw, Not a Pole Sees Him

By JOSEPH GREGG, JR.
(UP Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN—Adolf Hitler has had his triumphal entry into Warsaw, reviewed a two-hour parade of his troops across the city's ruins, and returned safely, and not a single Polish citizen has cast eyes on him.

The trip was made yesterday by airplane. I and other foreign correspondents were taken along. We saw a wrecked city. But while Hitler was there, we didn't see a civilian.

All streets Hitler passed had been roped off. Nobody was permitted out-of-doors, except German soldiers. German sentries with fixed bayonets kept all pedestrians at least a block off the parade route. Hitler didn't see one of his new subjects and not one of them saw him.

Hitler went directly from the airport to the reviewing stand in the comparatively undamaged diplomatic district, and, after the parade, directly back to the airport. After he left I toured the city and it was only then that the devastation of Warsaw could be fully realized.

Three-fourths of the buildings had been destroyed. There are great bomb craters in the streets. Sides have been sheared off buildings and the sheels left standing are full of gaping holes.

In the suburbs, brand new villas and apartment houses, some not even completed, had been reduced to smoke-blackened wreckage.

At the airport, before leaving, Hitler shook hands with the correspondents and said:

"Gentlemen, you see for yourselves what criminal folly it was to try to defend this city militarily.

"I only wish those men in other countries who seem to want to turn the whole of west Europe into such a shambles as Warsaw could have this opportunity of seeing the real meaning of war."

THEATERS

FOR the second time in its history Hollywood had a premiere which cost $10 a seat. It was the opening the other night of "Hollywood Cavalcade," which is the first film about the industry which neither satirizes or criticizes it. The other $10 premiere was DeMille's "King of Kings" in 1927. The Cavalcade shows the progress of the industry from the first reelers, through the Keystone Kopscustard pie, to the first talkies and right up to the present. One of the "cut-backs" will show Al Jolson singing "Kol Nidre" in "The Jazz Singer," the first talkie. The story in the film depicts some of the real love affairs and tragedies of the film capital. Don Ameche and Alice Faye have the leading roles.

Famous Story Re-Filmed.

Percival Christopher Wren's stirring story of brotherly love and the Foreign Legion comes back to the screen for the second time. "Beau Geste," once made as an "epic" silent film, has been remade as a talking picture, with Gary Cooper as Beau of the Geste brothers. Ray Milland plays John Geste and Robert Preston is seen as Digby. Susan Hayward has the role of the girl which was played by Mary Brian in the Ronald Colman picture. "Beau Geste" is one of the most dramatic stories of the Foreign Legion in recent years. The cast is a long one, with many famous supporting players. It opens at the Ohio tomorrow.

* * *

Park Bench to Park Avenue.

And now we have Ginger Rogers, who scored heavily in "Bachelor Mother" as a park bench "steno" whom Dame Fortune leads into a parkside mansion. Installed as a mystery pal of the master of the mansion, she develops into a matrimonial trouble shooter. This romantic comedy, "Fifth Avenue Girl," comes to the Madison tomorrow. Supporting Miss Rogers is James Ellison, Walter Connolly, Verree Teasdale, young Tim Holt and Franklin Pangborn.

* * *

Gene to the Rescue.

Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette are called into action by Ma Hutchins when there is a threat to sell off the public grazing lands on which every rancher in the valley is dependent. But you can bet that Gene and Smiley do the right thing by Ma, not to mention the pretty girl in the story. "Mountain Rhythm" is one of the Ritz attractions for today and tomorrow. "The Hound of The Baskerville" with Basil Rathbone and Richard Greene is also being shown there.

* * *

Murder and Politics.

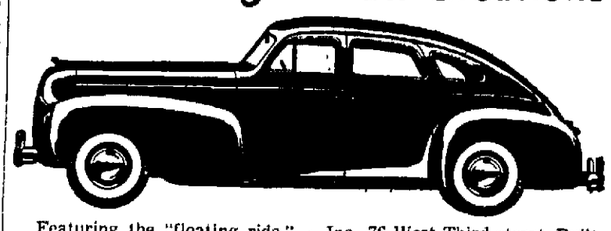
A mystery theme and a political war provide the themes for the two pictures at the Park. In "Murder Is News" a wealthy business man is murdered at a night club, but after the word is telephoned to police the body disappears. A reporter-columnist has a lot of excitement finding the body and the murderer. In "Beware of Ladies," pretty Judith Allen, the former Mrs. Jack Doyle, also plays a newspaper reporter. She is called into action by her paper when a woman's wits are needed in a political scandal.

* * *

Action At Majestic.

Cattle rustlers at the Circle A ranch give former Texas Ranger Charles Starrett something to do in "Rider of Black River," a Majestic attraction. Iris Meredith is seen as the girl in the Western romance. The second picture is "Behind Prison Gates" in which Brian Donlevy, as a special investigator, goes to prison to secure evidence in a case which puzzles his chief, the district attorney. But getting into jail is a lot easier, he finds, than getting out.

One of Dodge's New Creations



Featuring the "floating ride," the new Dodge four-door Luxury Liner is one of the 1940 Dodge models on display at the showrooms of Colby and Earick, Inc., 76 West Third street. Built on the latest idea in spring suspension, the "floating ride" is said to give the sensation of riding on air.

VICTIM JOKES OVER PLIGHT AS BODY TURNS TO STONE

When visitors see him at the St. Vincent hospital he dares them to turn his head. They try and fail. Van Schyndle's head is as solid as a rock. In fact, it is becoming rock.

Van Schyndle is slowly becoming petrified — victim of a creeping disease which has puzzled physicians. They have progressed little beyond classifying it with a long Latin name—"myositis ossificans progressiva."

Despite his position among the ranks of the living dead, Van Schyndle has a cheerful mien and an untroubled philosophy. He combines this with a macabre wit as is illustrated by his request to try moving his head. When efforts fail he remarks:

"I am a true blockhead."

The only external organs the "man of stone" is able to move are the voluntary muscles which control the eyes, mouth, wrists and fingers.

Says Health's Excellent.

However, Van Schyndle boasts that he has excellent health. He asserts:

"I haven't had a stomach ache or other ache during the past few years.

"The doctors and nurses held me to a fruit diet for a while, but it didn't seem to help; so since then I've eaten lots of everything.

"My last pill went down the hatch on Jan. 13, 1931."

The patient's blood stream is depositing layer after layer of calcium in place of tissues. Doctors say he will die when the hardening process strikes a vital organ, and they give him only a few years, at most, to live.

Van Schyndle has been suffering from the disease for 22 years and has spent more than 13 years in the hospital. When the ailment was noticed in 1914, he went to Montana in an unsuccesful effort to halt its spread.

One of the most astounding things about this man is that he manages to earn a living. He does it by knitting sweaters, pillow covers, doilies and similar objects. His stock is then placed on a movable stand and the patient is wheeled out into the hall to sell his wares to other patients.

Included among objects on his stand are religious pieces, and in these he does a brisk trade.

Uses Hand Loom.

Van Schyndle has fashioned a miniature hand loom on which he works. He also has taught another bedridden patient, Louis E. Nejedio, 80, Green Bay, to knit.

"Louis helps me in making the goods," Van Schyndle said. "He's kind of a crocheting partner.

"We have regular knitting bees, but we get done faster than the women folks."

With the aid of long-handled knives and forks, the patient is able to eat his meals—which are as large as the normal person consumes—without assistance except for drinking tea or coffee.

"There used to be pillows on my bed," Van Schyndle relates unhesitantly bringing out facts about his strange life, "but they were a nuisance, as I couldn't feel them anyway; so they were taken off."

ROBIN ANSWERS WHISTLE

Widely known citizen makes public endosement of famous medicine after it helped so much. Advises everyone to try Vendol.

MRS. CHARLES LOGSDON

Giving full credit to Vendol for relieving troubles that had bothered her for years, Mrs. Charles Logsdon, residing on Oak St., Route 5, Mansfield, whose husband is a Sheet Metal Worker at the Art-Rattan Co., gives Vendol one of the most enthusiastic public recommendations yet received for this celebrated Root, Herb, Alkaline medicine, as follows:

"For years I had suffered from constipation, which caused almost intolerable acid indigestion, gassy stomach, and such bloating that my abdomen felt as tight as a drum at times. I was so nervous that I couldn't sit long in one place, any sharp noise would make me jump, and my sleep was light and easily broken.

"I frequently took such medicines as salts, oil, or other purgatives to keep me going, but this was weakening after a long period.

"I heard a lot about Vendol from friends who had taken it, and often read in the papers what men and women here in our home town said Vendol dir for them So, I got a bottle along with a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets, and I want to state that I found Vendol as good as they said it was, and my improvement began with the first bottle.

"Vendol relieved my constipation in the most satisfactory manner, then my appetite improved; I eat anything now without gas, sour stomach, or bloating later, and feel splendid in every way. I haven't needed a purgative since. I started on Vendol, and my nerves have calmed down so that I enjoy delightful, restful sleep.

"I want to advise everyone with the same troubles from the same cause as mine to get Vendol without delay."

Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this celebrated medicine that is doing so much good in this city and nearby communities. Vendol is sold by all leading druggists.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

SOCIETY HEADS START DISCUSSION SUBJECTS

Mrs. R. W. James, Mrs. Anna Rice Outline Year's Work; Musical Numbers Given; Mrs. O. G. Place Serves Dinner.

THE topic for discussion by the presidents, Mrs. R. W. James and Mrs. Anna Rice, of Home and Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist church yesterday was "A Message to Auxiliaries." Mrs. James was also in charge of the business of the Home group, while Mrs. Rice conducted the Foreign group's business. Mrs. Della Richardson read the devotions.

Mrs. L. D. Bower outlined the year's program for the Home society, and announced that the study book will be "Homeland Harvest." Mrs. Charles Ray gave the prologue of "Women and the Way," which will be the study book for the Foreign society this year.

During the remainder of the program, Miss Ruth Leighley sang two vocal solos, and Mrs. C. G. Critchfield, of the Central Methodist church, reported on the Home Missionary convention, which was held in Martin's Ferry on Sept. 20-21.

Mrs. O. G. Place and her committee served a fellowship supper at the close of the afternoon. The next regular meeting of the society will be held at the church on Nov. 2.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Mrs. George Riel was named president, Mrs. Earl Giffin, vice president, and Mrs. Orlan Hoyer, secretary-treasurer, of the Welfare club when election of officers was held Wednesday during a meeting at the home of Mrs. George Hughes on Sherman avenue. Mrs. J. D. Scott will have the next meeting, Nov. 1, at her home on Sycamore street.

Mrs. John Kunz Gives Travelogue Before Study Club

Luncheon was served at Westbrook Country club to 12 members of the Timely Topics club for the opening session. Mrs. John Kunz gave the paper of the day which was a travelogue on her six months' tour through California, Canada and the west. In her talk Mrs. Kunz told of her four months' stay in Los Angeles, and described Hollywood where 85 per cent of the motion pictures are made in 28 different studios which employ 40,000 persons.

She spoke of the geographical and historical beauties she had seen, and told of the flowers, gardens and other points of interest. She was also in Victoria at the time the King and Queen of England were visiting there.

Mrs. Mary Schmidt was a guest at the meeting. The next session will be held Oct. 20 at the home of Miss Carolyn Walter. This meeting will be a Halloween party.

Mayor Proclaims Business Women's Week

The News-Journal photographer snapped this picture just as Mayor Claude M. Hunter was giving Mrs. Marvel Cowell, president of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club, a proclamation naming the week of Oct. 8-14, National Business and Professional Women's Week. Miss Marjorie High, publicity chairman of the club, and Miss Esther Snyder, hospitality chairman, are also shown above. Gov. John W. Bricker has signed a similar paper proclaiming the week throughout the state of Ohio.

Mrs. Benninghoff Announces Books For Two Reviews

Letters received in Mansfield recently from Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff, Cleveland, disclosed two of the three books she will review this season under the auspices of the Women's association of the First Congregational church. Mrs. Benninghoff will give "So Stands the Rock" by Anne Miller Downes Oct. 17 in the church auditorium.

On Nov. 28 she will give "Days of Our Years" by Pierre Van Paassen. The third program is scheduled for Feb. 27. Tickets for the series may be purchased from association members, and single admissions are also available.

Speaking of "So Stands the Rock" Mrs. Benninghoff writes, "It is a very strong novel, and I feel sure it will grow in popularity." At present she plans to give two novels and one non-fiction review under the association sponsorship.

Mrs. Mattox Hostess At Party For Mrs. Hursh

Mrs. Edward Mattox, Dickson avenue, entertained last night in honor of Mrs. Richard Hursh, Bellville, the former Miss Evelyn Neubrecht of Mansfield. The affair was a desesrt-bridge and miscellaneous shower. Orange and brown appointments were used for decorations on the small tables.

The prize was awarded to Mrs. Edwin Winsper, Wooster, who presented it to Mrs. Hursh, and the hostess gave the bride a wedding gift. Out-of-town guests in addition to Mrs. Winsper were Mrs. Elmer Fisher and Mrs. Willis Krumlaw, Ashland.

CONFERENCE LEADER TALKS TO ASSOCIATION

Mrs. O. G. Reumon Guest At First Session of Congregational Group; Luncheon Served; Future Events Announced.

"THY Kingdom Come Through Me" was the topic on which Mrs. O. G. Reumon, Medina, president of the Women's Department of Missions of the Ohio Conference of Congregational churches, spoke yesterday at the first luncheon meeting of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church.

In her lecture she made three points which were, know the will of God for the individual and the group, do the will of God, and bring in the kingdom of God by strengthening the inner life. She emphasized the women's program of the church, and made several practical suggestions for carrying out this work in organizations and individual lives.

The meeting was conducted by Miss Helen Hurst and Mrs. H. H. Sanford led the devotions. Mrs. Peter Young sang a solo number. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Fox, chairman; Mrs. David Feiser, Mrs. Tom Ford, Mrs. Avery Hand, Mrs. William Osborn, Mrs. Todd Patton, Mrs. Fred Weaver, Mrs. Fred James, Mrs. Louis Lamoreux, Mrs. George Mead, Mrs. C. G. Hillier, Mrs. Frank Maxwell, Mrs. M. V. Scouten. Luncheon was served to 60 members and friends.

Announcement was made of the book reviews by Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff beginning Oct. 17, and also it was announced that the assiciation is sponsoring the sale of Community Play tickets again this season.

REGULAR SESSION.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. B. A. Pioneer club No. 315 was held last night with 11 members and one guest, Miss Esther Zerby, present at the home of Mrs. Fred Ammeter, Lexington avenue road. Following the social hour, it was announced that Mrs. Charles Swain, 33 Hoffman avenue, will entertain Nov. 2.

Two Birthdays Celebrated Here

Birthday celebrations honored two persons in the Mansfield area last night as friends and relatives gathered to offer congratulations and present gifts. Miss Lovina Stinehour, Lincoln Heights, was feted at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Frank DeNero, 76 Orchard avenue. Pink and white appointments were used on the table which was centered with a cake made by Mrs. Mitchell Dennis. A group of relatives of the honoree was present.

* * *

Mrs. Charles Kagey, R. D. 2, was surprised last night when a group of friends and relatives gathered at her home for a birthday dinner in her honor. Mrs. Charles Kuhn, daughter of the guest of honor, served a three course dinner at a long table decorated with leaves and autumn appointments. The centerpiece was a horn of plenty filled with fruit and sprays of bittersweet.

Three Women's Groups Hold Monthly Sessions at Church

THE three women's groups of the Central Methodist church met yesterday at the church with the Foreign Missionary society under the presidency of Mrs. E. C. Jenkins opening the morning program. Devotions were given by Mrs. J. E. Smith followed by Mrs. George Sherman who read the chapter from the study book "Women and the Way In Africa."

Mrs. E. A. Conant, Mrs. Louis Rahn, and Mrs. Jenkins gave reports of the recent branch meeting held in Lakewood. Rev. R. L. Foulke conducted the installation ceremony.

The Home society met with Mrs. L. F. Rondel presiding, and Mrs. H. D. Bishop giving the devotions after which Mrs. Conant read the chapters from the study book, "Homeland Harvest." Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Charles Birch, accompanied by Mrs. Rahn, sang a duet.

Mrs. J. J. Dunn was hostess for the luncheon. Late in the afternoon Mrs. C. N. Shultz, president, gave an inspirational message before the Aid society. Mrs. J. C. Stout, Mrs. L. A. Ogborn, Mrs. Retta Bonar and Mrs. Birch, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Jones, sang. At these sessions plans were made to hold a reception Oct. 12 in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Foulke, the new pastor and his wife. A family night covered-dish dinner party will be held at that time.

Details of a recent dues paying party were also announced. The home society entertained 53 in the church parlors with Mrs. D. R. Brown, of the Salvation Army, as guest speaker. Mrs. George Hout of the First church gave a reading the same day.

Mrs. Stout and Mrs. Bonar sung, and Mrs. C. G. Critchfield reported the annual meeting of the society at Martins Ferry. Mrs. George Ganyard was general chairman and Mrs. Stout was program chairman.

Activities of Social Clubs

Plans were made for a family wiener roast to be held Oct. 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Rupanovic yesterday when members of the Learn-a-Stitch club met with Mrs. Martin Hoffman, Spring street, to do fancy work. Mrs. Rupanovic won the contest, and Mrs. Carl Eastman, a guest, was presented with a gift.

Roses and petunias were used as decorations in the home and on the refreshemnt table. Mrs. Philip Wentz, Spring street, will entertain Nov. 2.

* * *

Mrs. Howard Guisinger, Lind avenue, was hostess to members of the S. S. S. Bridge club last night. Bridge awards were given to Mrs. Justin Guisinger and Miss Helen Hartnett. A two-course luncheon was served at a table decorated with rose and pink appointments. Mrs. Boyd Terry, 39 Poplar street, will entertain at the next meeting, but no date was set.

* * *

Pinochle was played at the home of Mrs. C. E. Smith, Perrysville, yesterday afternon when she entertained the Tip-Top club. Prizes were presented to Mrs. J. W. Peyton, Mrs. H. F. Sullivan, and Mrs. F. J. Kelly. Mrs. R. C. Baker, 362 Harker street, will entertain Oct. 19.

* * *

One guest, Miss Margaret Steward, was present last night when Miss Margaret Harrold, Penn avenue, entertained members of the Cardettes club. The guest and Miss Virginia Fox were the winners. Luncheon was served at a table decorated with Fall flowers. The next meeting will be Oct. 10 with Miss Fox, 336 West Fifth street.

* * *

Mrs. Wayne Jackson was elected president of the Domestic Arts club last evening during a meeting at the home of Mrs. L. F. Winkler on the Woodville road. Mrs. Roy Simmons was named secretary-treasurer at the same time. The group played card games after the business session, and prizes were won by Mrs. H. J. Bronkar and Mrs. Roy Murray. Mrs. Weldon Latimer will entertain the club members at her home, 19 Ford avenue, on Nov. 2.

* * *

Mrs. Howard Schuck was named president of the Gardenia club at the first meeting of the season yesterday at the home of Mrs. Nettie Young, 112½ South Main street. Mrs. Grace Schellenberger is vice president, and Mrs. Jane Beelman, secretary-treasurer. The floral secretary is Mrs. Julia Grandstaff, and Mrs. Alice Maxwell is press correspondent. Refreshments were served at the close of the business session, and Mrs. Grandstaff was announced as the Oct. 20 hostess. She will entertain at her home, 396 Wood street.

* * *

Mrs. John Pierce entertained members of the Thursday Mother's club with a dessert-luncheon at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home on West Third street. The guests were seated at one large table decorated with a floral centerpiece for the dessert course. Mrs. John Brant was in charge of the business meeting, after which the afternoon was spent socially. A luncheon at the Women's Club will be an event of Nov. 2 for the group.

Florence Smith New President Of Sorority; Dance Planned

MISS FLORENCE SMITH was elected president of the Mansfield chapter of Beta Kappa Tau last night when the members met in the club rooms on South Main street to launch the year's activities. Miss Ethel Heuss is vice president; Miss Maxine Rimmer, secretary, Miss Etta Long, treasurer, and Miss Louise Bush was appointed corresponding secretary, while Miss Margaret Moorhead was given the post of social secretary.

Plans for a Christmas holiday dance to be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel were discussed with Miss Jean McGowan, president of the Shelby chapter, representing that group. The Misses Thelma Dickson, Joan Stout, Pauline Folmer and Wilma Sauder were named to complete arrangements.

The sorority will entertain at a Halloween party Oct. 26 with the Misses Margaret Kochheiser, Joan Stout, Ethel Heuss, Mary Hinz and Louise Bush in charge. A rummage sale will be sponsored on North Main street Oct. 14 by the group. The next regular meeting will be Oct. 19 at the club rooms.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

ARE you fully aware of the wonders of Ohio? There are many, you know, and perhaps even more than usual at this season of the year. . . .A group of former Mansfielders realize our state's charm and beauty to a greater extent than most of us now—because it's their first visit here in 18 years. . . .Probably many of you remember Anna and Mary Hans who married brothers (Frank and R. G. Winkler) and then moved to Denver, Col. nearly two decades ago. . . .The R. G. Winklers are back now with their daughter, Margaret Helen, (who was only in kindergarten when the family moved west) and Mrs. Anna Winkler visiting the Mrs. Winklers' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Berlo, and Mr. Winkler's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winkler—this is the first time the families have been reunited in all the passing years.

Marianne

* * * * *

All of the visiting Winklers are delighted with Ohio's abundance of trees—which are so resplendent in bright autumn shades these days. . . .In fact Margaret went on her first nutting excursion yesterday and came back proud as punch of a large basket full of walnuts—souvenirs for Denver, no doubt. . . .And next Monday Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Wankler, Margaret, Mrs. Anna Winkler and Helen Berlo are going to Niagara Falls—which all the folks out west think everyone should view. . . .Margaret is being married in November, and after the wedding, she and her husband, Thomas Overton, will go to Salt Lake City, Utah to make their home.

* * * * *

VISITORS TO THE EAST: Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Clingan and their daughter, Mrs. Norman Leonard, have gone to New York City for business, shopping and the fair. . . .And perchance they might meet some other Mansfielders while there, because Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Schettler are in New York this week too.

* * * * *

AND TO THE WEST: Today was undoubtedly the most important day of the year (even more so than Christmas, Thanksgiving and her birthday rolled into one) for Beverly Schwein as she entrained this noon for Chicago, Ill. and on to San Francisco, Cal. . . .She has gone with her mother, Mrs. A. M. Schwein, and they will visit James Clark (who has been in San Francisco—employed by Westinghouse at the Golden Gate expo—since early this year) and also go to Los Angeles while there.

* * * * *

Speaking of Los Angeles, a Mansfield family moved to that west coast city this week. . . .Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lersch and their son, Bobby, will make their future home there—perhaps you remember Mrs. Lersch as the former Mildred Smith.

* * * * *

BESIDES those already mentioned, some other folks have been wise enough to save their vacations until this month—and it really is a vacation they're taking too! Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Shafer and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Osborn left Mansfield about the middle of the week for New York City, and they're sailing from there today for South America. . . .They'll be in Panama, Colombia and Venezuela before returning home at the end of the month.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Porter of Athens are week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer. . . . Mr. Porter, who is an instructor of biology and botany in the Athens high school, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Mansfield Nature club this evening.

* * * * *

COLLEGIATE COMMENT: Even though it's still early in the school year, Bette Jeanne Horner has received recognition at Smith college in Northampton, Mass. . . .Bette's name was placed on the dean's list and she won first honor in an exemption examination, taken after the beginning of school this fall. . . .Bette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Horner, took her east, and they've just returned home following a short visit in Boston and Northampton.

GOLD OBTAINED WITHOUT SHOVEL

MELBOURNE, Australia—(U.P.)—Kenneth Bennett, a shopkeeper of Creswick has given up golf for gold mining.

His mine is on a piece of land he owns just outside the town. As mining is only his hobby, he does not believe in making hard work of it, and he has worked out the following system:

Go out to the mine, put a stick of gelignite in the bottom of it, climb out and wait for the bang, and climb in again and pick up the pieces.

No pick and shovel work about that. The other week he brought up a nugget worth $250.

FOUND IN SKULL

RATTLESNAKE BAR, Cal.—(U.P.)—A human skull, unearthed near here during mining operations, was turned over by the finder, who didn't like bones, to a Chinese miner. The Chinese didn't like human skulls either, but something glittered through the eyeless sockets and he took it down to the nearby stream and washed it. The dirt about the skull contained an ounce of gold and inside the skull was a nugget weighing 10 ounces.

ONCE AUCTIONED

BARRE, Mass.—(U.P.)—Administration of poor relief was auctioned by the town of Barre back in 1788. Early records uncovered by the WPA historical records survey disclosed that the town voted "to sell the poor at Publick Oction to the lowest bidder for one year at so much per week."

PURER ALL-VEGETABLE Spry TRIPLE-CREAMED

APPLE FOLD-OVERS WITH CRYSTAL LEMON SAUCE

¾ cup brown sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 apples, pared and finely chopped, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup Spry, 4 tablespoons milk (about)

Mix brown sugar, flour and salt in saucepan. Add water, vinegar and butter. Cook over low heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool and add chopped apples.

Sift flour with salt. Cut in ⅔ of Spry until mixture is as fine as meal. Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. (Notice how easily triple-creamed Spry blends with the flour!) Sprinkle milk gradually over mixture, mixing with a fork until a dough is formed.

Roll ⅜-inch thick and cut into 4-inch squares. Put a spoonful of apple mixture on each square and fold over to form a triangle. Seal edge and prick top. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 15 minutes. Serve with Crystal Lemon Sauce. Makes 16 delicious fold-overs.

CRYSTAL LEMON SAUCE

1 tablespoon cornstarch, ⅓ cup sugar, Dash of salt, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, Grated rind of ½ lemon, 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine cornstarch, sugar, and salt, and mix well. Add boiling water, stirring constantly, and boil gently 5 minutes. Add butter and lemon rind and juice. Makes 1¼ cups sauce.

BIGELOW TELLS HOW PENSION PLAN OPERATES

Questions and Answers Clear Confusing Points; Those Eligible Defined.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Contrary to popular opinion, the proposed constitutional amendment of Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, to be voted on Nov. 7, would not give pensions of $40 and $50 a month to every Ohioan 60 years old or over.

Bigelow himself is authority for this statement.

"What, then, would the old folk receive?" readers will ask.

The following questions and answers attempt to explain the Bigelow plan, its estimated cost and the proposed method of financing it.

Q—What is the Bigelow plan?

A—It is a guaranteed income proposition. For those eligible to participate, it would guarantee an income of $50 a month to single persons and $80 a month to married couples living together. If an aged single person had an income of $50 a month, he would receive nothing from the state. If his income was $20, he would receive $30.

Q—Who would be eligible to participate?

A—American citizens, resident in Ohio, who were 60 years old or over, who had retired "from gainful occupation as wage earners," and who were not under conviction for crime.

Q—How about persons who were not "wage earners," such as farmers, store owners, doctors, lawyers and other professional people—would they be eligible?

Possible Court Action.

A—That question apparently would have to be determined by the courts. The Ohio emergency committee, a group of 40 business, professional and agricultural organizations formed to combat the Bigelow amendments, says the language of the amendment "seems to exclude" non-wage earners.

Q—Ohio already has a pension system, doesn't it?

A—Yes. It is disbursing "aid for the aged" benefits, averaging about $23 a month, to 120,000 persons 65 years old or older.

Q—How many persons would be eligible to benefit under the Bigelow plan?

A—State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt estimates 690,000 persons. C. R. Smaiser, chief statistician of the division of aid for the aged, estimates 372,000.

Q—How much would the Bigelow pensions cost the state?

A—Bigelow estimates $56,000,000 a year. Tax Commissioner Evatt figures $310,000,000 a year, Smalser $189,000,000; the Ohio Emergency Committee $303,000,000, and the Ohio Chamber of Commerce $381,600,000. The Commerce estimates the cost would mount to $560,000,000 a year in 1960. The estimates, other than Bigelow's, apparently make no allowance for the federal government paying a portion of the cost.

Q—How much could Ohio expect in federal aid for pensions under the Bigelow plan?

A—The Ohio Emergency Committee contends the state might lose all federal aid because the Bigelow amendment does not set up "need" as a qualification for the recipient. Bigelow denies this. Disregarding any possible legal question, the federal government could under its existing law pay half of pensions which did not exceed $40 a month and which were received by persons 65 years old or over (instead of 60). It would be mathematically possible for the federal government to contribute $29,000,000 a year, but whether it would is a question which can not now be answered definitely. The state's present pension system now receives $16,000,000 annual federal aid.

Raised By Tax.

Q—How would the money be raised for the Bigelow pensions?

A—By a state income tax equal to one-fourth the federal income tax and a tax of two per cent on land worth more than $20,000 an acre.

Q—Are these taxes certain to be levied?

A—Undoubtedly, if the pension plan is adopted. A vote for the Bigelow pensions is a vote for the taxes, because the two are coupled together in one constitutional amendment.

Q—Would any other new taxes be needed?

A—That is debatable. Tax Commissioner Evatt estimates that the most the land and income taxes combined would yield is $140,000,000 a year, whereas he estimates the Bigelow plan would cost $310,000,000.

Q—How much would the income tax yield?

A—Commissioner Evatt estimates $40,000,000 a year, Bigelow $30,000,000, and the Ohio Emergency Committee $24,000,000.

Q—Who would pay the income tax?

A—Anyone paying a federal income tax would pay to the state one-fourth of that amount.

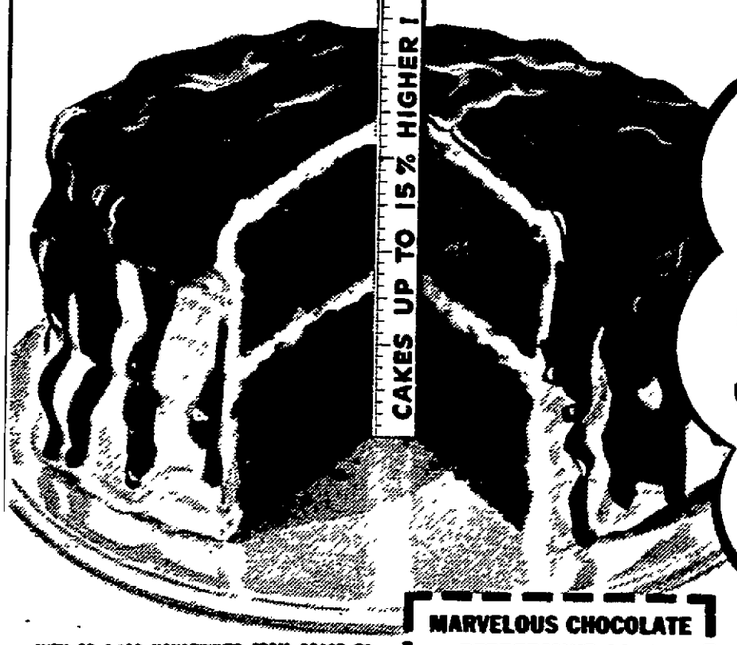
"BEST cakes you EVER baked"

Biggest shortening discovery in 29 years!

"SURE-MIX" CRISCO makes cakes better-eating in 3 ways



1 · · HIGHER!
Let your own cake recipe show you. "Sure-Mix" Crisco cakes are higher! —up to 15% higher than cakes made with any other household shortening we know of.

2 · · LIGHTER!
Let your own oven show you. Cakes made with "Sure-Mix" Crisco have a new lightness and feathery grain.

3 · · TENDERER!
Let the first taste tell you! "Sure-Mix" Crisco cakes are tenderer, too, more delicious, better-eating!

JURY OF 1,100 HOUSEWIVES FROM COAST TO COAST made "Blind" Test of "Sure-Mix" Crisco. Each was asked to use her own recipe and bake two cakes—one with an unlabeled shortening (it was "Sure-Mix" Crisco) and one with another shortening. Here's what the majority preference vote showed: The cakes made with "Sure-Mix" Crisco turned out 1. Higher 2. Lighter 3. Tenderer 4. Better-eating!

MARVELOUS CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT CAKE

⅔ cup Crisco	2 squares chocolate
1¼ cups sugar	1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 eggs	1¾ cups cake flour
½ teaspoon salt	1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend Crisco, sugar, eggs, salt and vanilla. (See how "Sure-Mix" Crisco forms together all the ingredients.) Add melted chocolate, beat well. Sift flour and soda. Add to chocolate mixture alternately with sour milk. (Note completely mixed batter!) Bake in two "Crisco'ed" 9-inch layer pans in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30-35 minutes.

DOUBLE BOILER PEPPERMINT FROSTING: Beat together over boiling water 2 unbeaten egg whites, ⅓ cup water, 1½ cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Beat 7 minutes or until frosting holds peaks. Add ¾ teaspoon peppermint extract. Spread between layers and over cake. Let set. Melt 2 squares chocolate, pour over top, let it drip down sides.

All Measurements Level

Better Cakes from Better Batter!

"Why, it's the best cake I ever made!"—that's what you'll say the very first time you make a cake with New "Sure-Mix" Crisco!

You'll see an amazing difference. An important scientific discovery has brought a vital improvement to pure, all-vegetable Crisco. It now does things no other shortening we know of ever did for you before.

NEW "SURE-MIX" CRISCO GIVES NEW TYPE BATTER. New "Sure-Mix" Crisco actually seems to draw in the other ingredients. They get together and stay together. This new type batter produces a better-eating cake than you ever baked before.

CAKES HIGHER, LIGHTER, TENDERER. Yes—our baking tests show that your regular recipes—with New "Sure-Mix" Crisco will turn out cakes that are better three ways—1. Higher—up to 15% higher depending on type of cake 2. Lighter 3. Tenderer . . . and grand to eat!

Just use New "Sure-Mix" Crisco in your next cake—and discover how sensationally different it is now from any other shortening you can buy!

FOR BETTER-EATING CAKES

IMPORTANT!
Just ask for "Crisco" at your store—as usual. All Crisco is now "Sure-Mix." There's no change in hinge-top can or label—but oh, the difference in Crisco itself!

HITLER MAKES 'FINAL OFFER,' REJECTION SEEN

form which he had said previously he would not abandon until he had won the war.

Disclosing, in a review of the Polish campaign, that Germany had lost 44,313 men in killed, wounded and missing, Hitler argued that there was nothing further for Europe to fight for now that Germany had crashed Poland. He estimated the total number of prisoners taken by the German army at nearly 700,000.

Hitler's program for European peace touched on everything from disarmament to colonies and Jews.

His points included:

1—The conference of nations.

2—Disarmament, or failing that, an agreement to forbid the use of poison gas in order to reduce the horrors of war. The most important pre-condition to security and peace was a return of armaments to "a sensible and economically bearable level."

3—Solution of the European Jewish "problem."

Colonies Only Demand.

5—Germany now has no demands to make but for colonies, and the need for colonies does not represent an ultimative demand.

"Our only demand is for colonial possessions fitting for and suitable for the reich—that is, the return of former German colonies," he said.

6—Germany will respect the neutrality of Denmark, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia and all other neighbors and desires only strong economic relations with them.

7—Security is possibly only on the basis of German-British friendship.

8—If Britain and France are fighting solely to defeat Germany they cannot do so, but even if they did the present situation would be the same in another 10 years.

9—The line between German and Russian interests is clearly drawn and there is no reason for hostilities between the Nazi and Communist states so long as they stick to their respective spheres.

Having outlined this program, Hitler said:

"If peace and security are not achieved, and if the conception of Herr Churchill and his cronies prevail, then this will be my last declaration.

"We will then fight. Neither force of arms nor time will conquer Germany. There will be no more November, 1918, in German history. Hope of disintegration of our people is childish."

Killed—10,572.
Wounded—30,332.
Missing—3,409.

Shortly before he spoke the German high command had announced that the last Polish resistance had ended at 10 a. m. (4 a. m. EST) when a Polish force of about 8,000 men surrendered at Kock, about 60 miles east of Warsaw.

Hitler said "provocation" had forced Germany's forceful moves in recent years.

Reviewing the Polish campaign at length, he said that a "grand success" was achieved by the German army, though western powers had tried to belittle it. He said the collapse of Poland was inevitable. It was not a Polish state, he said, and was run by a clique of landed aristocrats. Also, he said, Poland wanted to destroy Germany.

"I have pledged my word," he continued, "to discard the Versailles treaty. I have pledged my word to restore Germany's rights in a modest way."

Germany had found her resurrection, he said, in Nazism.

Then, in his appeal for peace, he swung round the circle in Europe—no demands against the neutrals of northern Europe; no intention of changing the "inviolable and eternal" boundaries of southeastern Europe; no demands on France.

". . . I think that permanent peace can be established in this world only if Great Britain and Germany get together," he said. "It has been one of the chief aims of my life to bring the German and British people together—not only intellectually but also in their feeling of mutual respect."

He praised the valour and efficiency of the French army and said:

"I have never made a demand that was incompatible with French honor or French vital interests."

The Nazi fuehrer said he had no fear of the British-French combination. Nor, he said, was he afraid of the judgment of history, his desire to bring about a peaceful solution of European problems, he said, came from a feeling of justice and strength, not of weakness.

Realization of his program, and of peace and security was possible only through the co-operation of all European nations.

"In order to achieve this aim, the great nations of this continent must meet in order to work out, accept and guarantee an agreement which will give them all a feeling of security, peace and quiet," he said.

But let no one believe, Hitler said, that his proposals meant that he was weak.

"Again I take this chance in expressing my ideas," he said. "My prestige can stand such dangers. Whether fear or despair motivates the course of events will be shown."

Only "international Jewish capitalists and their "journalistic mouth pieces" could now have any interest in a bloody clash between nation and nation.

'Poland Won't Rise.'

The Poland of the Versailles treaty never would rise again. Russia and Germany, Europe's greatest powers, guaranteed that. Germany would not be crushed again. If they tried to crush Nazism, the western powers would only uselessly sacrifice the lives of millions upon millions of men and women—and vainly.

But if the western powers wanted peace, Hitler said, he was willing to say that he now considered the Versailles treaty as no longer in existence, and that all German claims were satisfied with the exception of that for restoration of former colonies.

As to the past, he said, he was proud of his accomplishments. What he had brought out were readjustments in Europe, and he had never acted without first attempting a peaceful solution.

Swinging again to the statement that Germany could propose peace because it was strong, Hitler said:

"If I am making any peaceful overtures today they claim that it will be merely because I am afraid to take the consequences . . . All I can say is that future events will reveal whether these statements are correct.

Part of the security problem, Hitler said, was to reorganize the world economic set-up, to give under privileged nations better access to the world's wealth.

Eventually the great European nations would have to get together to solve their own and world problems, he said, and asked: Why not now? Why not now rather than after the youth of Europe had been killed off?

"The history of the world does not record a war with two victors," he said. "But often there have been two vanquished."

With this admonition, he added: "Should the British statesmen fail to see the issue in our light we shall fight, and I am certain that we shall be victorious. I can only pray that God Almighty may inspire the leaders of the world, so that they will help in bringing about peace. Let all those who are of like mind now speak up so that peace may be brought about."

Hitler started his speech at 12:06 p. m. (6:06 a. m. EST) and ended at 1:26 p. m. (7:26 a. m. EST)—one hour and 20 minutes.

His reichstag, mostly gray uniformed, had cheered him uproariously.

Bellville Speaker

Rev. Oscar Wago (above) of Columbue will speak during the morning and evening services Sunday at the Bellville Presbyterian church. Rev. Wago studied in the Universities of Vienna, Berlin, Paris, and Zurich, and by occupation was an automotive and airplane designer. During the World war he served as a major in the German army.

Italy Sees Little Hope For Peace.

ROME —(U.P.)— Fascist officials today viewed Adolf Hitler's speech as moderate but as failing to offer any great hope for peace.

Italy's determination to maintain a neutral stand, it was understood, remains unchanged.

Fascists believed that it would be difficult for the allies to reject the economic and various other discussions which Hitler suggested, but it was indicated that Premier Benito Mussolini did not plan to take any immediate initiative toward peace proposals.

PLAN NEW HEADQUARTERS

The Richland County Colored Republican Voters' club, headed by Nathan Brooks, Mansfield, had begun preparations today for the coming municipal campaign in Mansfield. Brooks, who is chairman of the organization's executive board, said campaign headquarters will be opened soon at a North Main street location.

he relied, an American ship, the Iroquois, is to be sunk when it nears our American east coast.

Refers to Athenia.

"The sinking of the Iroquois, Admiral Raeder said, "would be accomplished through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the Athenia."

The British liner Athenia, with many Americans on board, was sunk off the coast of Ireland the day Englind declared that a state of war existed with Germany. The British blamed a torpedo from a German submarine, but in Germany there were contentions that the Athenia had been sunk by foes of the reich to arouse feeling in the United States.)

Mention of the Athenia in Admiral Raeder's dispatch conveyed to many persons here the impression that Germany was, in effect, saying that Britain or France intended to sink the Iroquois, and then blame a German submarine.

Nazis Get 'Proof' They Had 'Warned' U. S.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, head of the German navy, required the American naval attache in Berlin to sign a statement acknowledging he had been informed that the American liner Iroquois carrying 796 persons, would be sunk as it neared the American coast, it was reported in authoritative quarters today.

Several destroyers and a coast guard cutter, were moving eastward on the north Atlantic today to meet the Iroquois and accompany her the rest of the way home. They were expected to pick her up tomorrow. It was emphasized that that did not mean American authorities placed any belief whatsoever in Admiral Raeder's implied charge that the British navy would sink the Iroquois thinking Germany would be blamed.

(In New York, officials of the United States line, which is operating the Iroquois under charter, termed Admiral Raeder's warning, propaganda.)

Government sources refused to reveal the position of the Iroquois, but calculations, based on the ship's usual speed showed that she was about 900 miles from Cobh, Ireland, early today. She is bound for New York and is due there Wednesday.

'Absurd,' British Say Of Nazi Statement.

LONDON — (AP) — Admiralty sources today brushed aside as "too absurd to deny" an official German tip to Washington implying that the United States liner Iroquois was to be sunk in fulfillment of a British plot.

The Iroquois sailed Tuesday from Cobh, in Cork harbor, Ireland, where she picked up 548 Americans. Eighteen Americans had boarded the ship at Liverpool, making a total of 566 in addition to the crew of 212. The passengers were in flight from the hazards of European war.

The admiralty sources spoke unofficially. Official comment was deferred but naval officials were reported astonished by German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning to the United States, through a naval attache at the Berlin embassy, that the Iroquois would be sunk.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy said he was keeping in closest touch with his and the British governments regarding the reported threat to the Iroquois. The liner had been especially chartered to repatriate Americans.

Beaten Reds Show Courage By Insisting 'We'll Be Back'

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds are a brave lot of boys. When they left here last night, bound for home and a resumption of the world series against the Yankees tomorrow, they were yelling belligerently: "We'll be back."

* * * * *

A full appreciation of this stout-hearted, devil-may-care attitude on the part of the National league champions can be had only by the 118,000 who sat in Yankee stadium for the past two afternoons and watched the lads from the west absorb two of the cruellest beatings ever dealt out by the Yankees or any other club.

* * * * *

Beaten by Red Ruffing, 2 to 1, in the opener, and shut out by Monte Pearson's marvelous two-hit pitching yesterday, 4 to 0, the Reds might have been forgiven had they refused to continue the classic unless they were given a head-start of, say, three runs per game.

But in their dressing room and on the cars last night they were insisting—"we'll be back!"—and Manager Bill McKechnie was railing: "Nobody can tell me we are as poor a ball club as we've looked the last two days. Tell 'em we're coming home with our heads up."

At that, the Reds cannot be quite that bad, even granting that they were up against almost phenomenal pitching. Few clubs, in any kind of series, ever were mowed down so mercilessly as they have been for two days.

In two games they have made just six hits, all singles. Only one Redleg, Ival Goodman, has reached second base, and he scored their lone run in the first game after drawing a walk.

When Ernie Lombardi plunked his single to center in the eighth yesterday he broke a string of 12 consecutive innings in which the Reds had failed to scratch any sort of a hit and had been retired in order by Ruffing and Pearson.

The crowded stadium was pulling for Pearson to get his no-hitter when Lombardi caught an outside curve squarely on the nose and shot it over second base. After the spell had been broken, it didn't matter so much that Bill Werber notched another hit after two were out in the ninth. Pearson, the 30-year-old veteran from Oakland, Calif., had pitched one of the classic games of world series history.

The Reds said it was his fast ball, rather than his sweeping curve, that baffled them. He struck out eight, center fielder Harry Craft going down three times swinging from his heels. For one remarkable period, through the fourth, fifth and sixth inning, Pearson struck out four batters and tossed three others out at first. On only two plays did he accept a little help from his infield.

* * * * *

Bucky Walters, like Paul Derringer before him, turned in a good job of chucking for the Reds. Of the nine hits pounded by the Yanks, five came in one big frame, the third. The Yankees were set down in order for the last three innings. Walters struck out five and owned to only one serious mistake—the fast ball that Babe Dahlgren whipped into the left-field stands in the fourth inning.

* * * * *

It is just like the Yankees that the weakest hitting regular on their side, Dahlgren, should have been the batting hero of the first two games. In six official times up he has blasted a home run and two doubles, a record that even Lou Gehrig, the man he succeeded at first base, might not have bettered. He drove across the Yankees' tying run in the opening game, scored their first run yesterday after doubling to open the third frame and then hit his four-bagger in the fourth.

LOUISVILLE CLUB WINS LITTLE WORLD SERIES

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(INS)—The Louisville Colonels of the American Association were the "Little World Series" champions today, the four runs they pushed across in the 11th inning last night halting the underdog Rochester Red Wings in the deciding game, 7 to 3.

The victory gave the Colonels the best four out of the seven games played. Four singles and a fielder's choice spelled victory for Louisville.

GAMES ON AIR

Again the networks concentrate on two games for their second Saturday of football.

The lineup: Oklahoma vs. Northwestern on WEAF-NBC and WABC-CBS at 2:45. The WOR-MBS network will join in after it completes description of the World Series game, scheduled at 1:15, Minnesota vs. Nebraska on WJZ-NBC also at 2.45.

Hallabrin Listed With Langhurst, Rabb As Keymen In State's Running Attack

By JIM EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Just-before-the-battle prospectus of the 1939 Ohio State pigskin chasers:

(Buckeye grid fans with a low boiling point are warned that the following is neither an offer to buy or sell shares in the success of the Ohio State fotball teams this fall. In other words, don't lynch us if we're wrong. After all this is COLLEGE FOOTBALL.)

* * * * *

The Ohio State gridders, about to make their 1939 bow on Saturday, hereby apply for a return ticket to the glory of the roaring Scarlet Scourge. Take heed—Missouri, Northwestern, Minnesota, Cornell, Indiana, Chicago, Illinois and Michigan.

* * * * *

HISTORY

This squad is the sixth at Ohio State coached by Francis A. Schmidt, famed "razzle dazzle" exponent. His previous Buck clubs have a record of 29 games won, 10 lost and one tied. The 1938 season was least successful—four won, three lost and one tied.

PROPERTIES

The 1939 Bucks have raw resources of 21 lettermen and the brightest appearing sophomore class in many moons. It should be remembered that the lettermen are almost the same who had only average success last fall. Losses from 1938 are slight.

PLAN OF CAPITALIZATION

From scrimmage tests, Schmidt believes he has the niftiest array of pigskin throwers and snatchers since he arrived here. Hence, this fall's offensive will be built around "razzle dazzle" plays buttressed by a stronger running attack than last year with Jim Strausbaugh, Jim Langhurst, Johnny Rabb, Dick Fisher and John Hallabrin carrying the leather.

ASSETS

More speed, better squad spirit than last year, possibly better reserves. Good backs and ends. Sophomores coming through better than expected. Schmidt has a "softened" and yet more determined attitude.

LIABILITIES

Untested tackles. (Except for Charley Maag, a converted center, entire tackle strength comprised of sophomores.) Sluggish guards and average centers. Quarterback strategy of unknown quality. Three trick knees—Johnny Rabb, Jack Graf and Vic Marino—and one trick ankle—Charley Maag. Doubtful if blocking and pass defense high enough for best Big Ten standards.

* * * * *

BEST SOPHOMORE BETS

Tackles Jim Daniell and Len Thom; Quarterback Jack Graf; End Charley Anderson; Center Bill Bell; Halfback Dick Fisher.

* * * * *

Fullback Jim Langhurst; End Charley Anderson.

OPINION OF COUNSEL

Strictly "question mark" team. On paper today, Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan look like sure defeats; Indiana and Cornell are toss-ups, and Missouri, Illinois and Chicago should be victories. As a final rosy thought, this may be a plenty tough ball club.

Shifts Lineup For Tonight's Orrville Tilt

PROBABLE LINEUPS

MADISON		ORRVILLE

Robinson	RG	Drage
Nalezinek	RT	Lyon

Henry	QB	Secket
Matthes	LH	McKee
Hammer	RH	Chatterelli
D. Weimer	FB	Bilderback

A NUMBER of lineup changes are expected in the Rams' lineup tonight when they tangle with the undefeated Orrville Red Raiders at Madison field at 8 o'clock.

Two changes announced by Coach Al Fendrick will install Brumenshenkel at a tackle post and Hammer in the backfield. The latter will replace the hard-running Doug DeNero, whom, Fendrick says, will not start because of an injury sustained in the Crestline game.

Outside of DeNero and a wingman, Barber, the Madison squad is in fairly decent shape for tonight's encounter with the Class A foe, but victory prospects are rather discouraging.

* * *

Madison fans are expected to see one of the outstanding backs in northeastern Ohio tonight when Walt McKee leads the Red Raiders on the field. Orrville is expected to bring its 75-piece band.

* * *

Another night game involving a Richland county team will take Shelby to Bucyrus for an N. C. O. tussle.

Build Defense Against Passes

POINTED for one of the tougher engagements on their schedule, the Mansfield high school Tygers trotted through a brisk signal drill at Stadium field today.

Shortly after 9 a. m. Saturday, the Tygers, accompanied by Coaches Paul Snyder, Vern Hoffman and Harry Mehock, and a retinue of managers and trainers will shove off for New Philadelphia, where they have an appointment with the Quakers at 2:30 p. m.

* * *

While their task Saturday does not appear as hopeless as it did on the eve of the Massillon game, the Tygers face anything but an easy assignment.

* * *

It will take a good Tyger team to halt the New Phillies, who are undefeated. The only mar on the record is a 7-7 tie with Lorain, and this can hardly be called a bad mark as the Lake Citians again are a power in their sector.

Working hard on pass defense this week, Snyder believes his secondary will test the vaunted Quaker aerial game. Every man in the New Philly backfield can toss the leather with better than average ability.

The New Philly attack is built around a big 200-pound fellow named Reese. If the Tygers can stop him, the chances of bringing home a victory will not be remote.

Snyder has not named his starting lineup for Saturday, but it not likely that it will be changed to any great extent.

* * *

Dave Templeton, Jim LeMunyon, Howard Hershey and probably Bill Doolittle are expected to form the backfield, with Joe Logan breaking in for his share of action. Logan's bad leg has shown marked improvement, Snyder says.

* * *

* * *

Sophomores Suffer First Setback.

UNABLE to launch a sustained drive, the sophomores of Mansfield high school bowed to the Canton Timken varsity by a 12 to 0 count on the Timken gridiron yesterday.

* * *

It was the first defeat of the season for Coach Harry Mehock's Sophomores, who have won three games. The junior Tygers were greatly outweighed.

* * *

Mansfield made only one serious scoring attempt, but Jimmy Templeton's throwing was a constant threat. The only time the Mehockmen were within in the Timken 10 was in the second period when they reached the eight, where it lost the ball on downs.

Templeton's kicking and passing and Elroy (Lightning) Jones' ball carrying were features of the Mansfield attack. Poor line blocking stood out as one of the chief Mansfield weaknesses.

* * *

The Timken gridders scored their first touchdown in the second period after making a first down on the one. Fernandez scored.

The other Canton touchdown followed the recovery of Leroy Sheeks' fumbled punt on Mansfield's 20. Fernandez again scored on a wide sweep after a pass had taken the ball to the 10.

BOWLING SCORES

THE only 600 total rolled in the four leagues in session at the Meder alleys last night was compiled by Leo Yuncker of the Yuncker Sports, Commercial B league. He led his team to three victories over the Possum Run Golfers with scores of 195, 219 and 213.

Paul Kozik of the Southern hotel team of the same league turned in one of the toughest "splits" of them all, the 4-6-10.

Supplies Rent Bleachers for Sunday's Game

Sunday football-goers will see action from comfortable bleachers in the future.

Announcement was made today by Fred Rizzo, business manager of the Automotive Supplies, that he has contracted for the use of the Mansfield Braves' bleachers for remaining games at Blue Goose field.

* * *

The stands will be erected in time for the Supplies' game with the Neago Cafes of Canton Sunday, Rizzo said.

* * *

Workmen erecting the bleachers are not the only busy men out at Blue Goose field these days, however. Coach Earl McMullen and his men are also putting in a good week's work on the practice field.

The Supplies have shown up well in their two appearances this season, but McMullen is not leaving anything undone in his attempt to make the semi-pro club stronger.

McMullen's club encountered little trouble in defeating the Akron O'Neils, 21 to 0, in its opener, and less in its 47 to 0 triumph over the Richwood Merchants last Sunday.

* * *

Outstanding again in the Mansfield triumph was Al Schwaner, whose throwing featured the first victory. Schwaner, who played at Mansfield high last year, scored three touchdowns in the one-sided victory.

* * *

Other scorers were Vern Heiser, Kenny Lockhart and Joe Miller, the latter two late of Madison high.

Howard Hamilton Leads Blue Jays to 4th Straight Victory on Losers' Field.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE Blue Jays of Bellville high school unveiled their potent touchdown machine for just two quarters yesterday to hand a scrappy Loudonville high combine a 28 to 0 beating on the Red Birds' gridiron before a fair-sized gathering.

Coach Royd Hodge's outfit pounded over touchdowns in the first and third periods to register Victory No. 4 and hold the distinction of being the only undefeated and untied grid team in Richland county.

* * *

Bellville, with Howard Hamilton, the team's leading individual scorer, pacing the whirlwind attack, struck fast and furious in the opening minutes of the game to take a lead it never relinquished. The Blue Jays tallied their initial marker in six plays.

* * *

Loudonville, however, gave its unbeaten rivals a scare in the second stanza with a dangerous passing attack, but lacked the needed punch to cross into pay dirt.

After Bellville had secured a 14-0 advantage in the opening chapter, the Red Birds opened up an aerial bombardment that carried them to the Bellville 12, where they lost the ball on downs just as the half ended.

The Red Birds, seeking their first win of the season, staged their biggest scoring threat in the third period against the Bellville seconds when they drove to the winners' two-yard stripe. But Loudonville lost the ball on downs. The Blue Jays' second strngers put on a defensive stand that brought cheers from the spectators.

Bill Martin put Bellville in front by taking a 10-yard aerial from Don Palm in the end zone. The play climaxed a 67-yard drive. Bellville didn't wait long to add to their total for in eight more plays Dick Keiser knifed through center from the two.

That was the last time Bellville threatened until the midway in the third stanza when a pass interception and a 57-yard run accounted for the other two touchdowns.

Keiser set the stage for the third marker by grabbing a Loudonville pass in midfield and returning to the Red Birds' two before he was brought down. Hamilton skirted right end on the first play to tally.

And then Hamilton left the fans gaping by circling his right fank from the Bellville 33, and galloping down the sidelines to score standing up. Hamilton added three extra points from placement and Keiser converted the other on a plunge.

* * *

The varsity replaced the Bellville juniors at the start of the fourth period, but was unable to get its attack underway against the hard-charging Loudonville forward wall. The entire fourth quarter was played in Bellville territory.

* * *

Loudonville, although its running attack functioned at times, relied on a passing offensive to give Bellville most of its trouble. Loudonville held the edge on first downs, 11 to 8, but Bellville scored its last two touchdowns without registering a first down.

New Ram Star

PARKER HALL—HALFBACK

Parker Hall Expected to Figure in Duel With Bears' Passer Sunday.

CLEVELAND —'Cleveland's Rams, victorious over Green Bay's highly touted Packers last Sunday 27 to 24 in a big upset, make their home debut Sunday afternoon in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium with the beefy Chicago Bears affording the opposition.

Branching out into a collegiate atmosphere, the Rams management will also trot out its new 80-piece marching band for its initial performance, clothed in the gaudiest uniforms ever worn by anybody's band. The band unies will be French smocks and berets done in color schemes of the various American universities.

Sunday's battle is expected to resolve into an aerial battle between the Ram's All-American halfback Parker Hall of Mississippi, and Bullet Billy Patterson of Baylor, rookie back of the Bears. Hall, making his National League bow this season, has easily proven the find of the League in the first few weeks of play.

* * *

Hall already has a flying start in his hope to set a new National Football League passing mark, having connected on 33 heaves out of 53 attempts for a percentage of .623. The present League record of 81 connections in 171 tosses is held by Slinging Sammy Baugh of Washington's Redskins, established in 1937.

* * *

All of Hall's passing brilliance will be needed in Sunday's home opener with the Bears, for the invaders will trot out the world's largest football line—a wall of humanity averaging 235 pounds. Last year the Rams whipped the Bears twice, thereby becoming the first team in the League's history to turn the trick. In the season's opener between the two clubs, the Rams, while outplaying the Windy City eleven, were defeated 30 to 21.

LYONS SQUARES SERIES, HOLDS CUBS TO FIVE HITS

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The ancient right arm of Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox on even terms today with the Cubs in their inter-city series with one victory each.

The 38-year-old hurler tamed the bruins with five hits yesterday and the Sox took the second game, 9 to 2. The Sox belted 13 blows off Charley Root, Dizzy Dean and Vance Page.

PLACE LITTLE CONFIDENCE IN HITLER SPEECH

Senators Doubt Sincerity of Statements; 'He's Lied So Often,' Norris Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Some senators indicated today that they had little confidence in the sincerity of Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag.

"I don't see how England and France can put any faith in Hitler's promises," said Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.) "I don't have any confidence in him. He has lied so often.

"Every time he takes a country he says he has no further territorial ambitions. But our part in all of this is merely of a spectator. We should neither insist that peace terms be accepted nor insist that they be rejected."

Senator Nye (R., N. D.), a leader of the opposition to the administration neutrality bill, told reporters that Hitler, "like presidents, kings and premiers, talks for his folks back home."

"I think that we should beware of the Greeks when they come bearing gifts," said Senator King (D., Utah). "I don't believe in Hitler's sincerity."

Senator Capper (R., Kas.), Senator Herring (D., Iowa) and Representative Jarman (D., Ala), listened to the speech by radio and then went on the air (NBC) with comments including these:

Capper—"He was trying to frighten Britain and France into peace on German terms, also he was bolstering up the spirit of the German people, but it is up to Britain and France and not to the United States to give the answer."

Herring—"The speech of Hitler impressed me as the plea of a guilty soul which is finally beginning to recognize its own crimes."

Jarman—"He reiterated his philosophy forcefully in the statement that in the final analysis it is not the method but results which count."

C. of C. Campaign Goes Over Top But 3 Teams 'Push On'

To all intents and purposes, the Chamber of Commerce fall membership round-up came to a close today, with the goal reached and actually overrun.

Workers gathered at the Evergreens restaurant at noon today, and reported 99 new members signed up. The goal in their campaign was 80.

Three two-man teams were tied for first honors in the campaign, and have until 5 p. m. for a final drive to break the deadlock.

The teams in the tie were those of Ed Geiger and John L. Connors, Dean Eckert and W. R. Mehl, and Earl McFarland and Ben Boals. Each team had nine new members.

At today's luncheon, C. L. VanDerau, president of the C. of C. presided. Speakers were C. H. Henkel and George W. Stephens, both former presidents of the Chamber.

FAKE OFFICER 'FINES' AUTOIST

Loudonville Man Tells Police He Paid Him $5.60 on Street.

Mansfield police today sought a fake officer who made an arrest in plainclothes and then collected the fine "on the spot."

The imposter came to their attention yesterday afternoon when Charles Sidel, Loudonville, reported that he was stopped for running through a red light at Park avenue east and Foster street and "charged" $5.60 by a man who flashed a badge and said he was working in plainclothes.

Sidel said the man wearing dark clothes and was about 45 years old. The autoist said he was told that if he didn't "cough up" it would cost him more.

ATTEND MEETING

P. P. S. Employes Go to Cleveland For Lighting Session.

Five employes of the Ohio Public Service company were in Cleveland today attending the first fall meeting of the Residence Lighting Forum of the Illuminating Engineering society at the General Electric company at Nela Park.

They were Mrs. Caroline Bushnell, Mrs. Marie Nicholas, Miss Dolores Garrison, Miss Harriet Will and Floyd Hoover. A talk by J. Paulus of the Westinghouse company will be included on program.

ENDEAVOR GROUPS MEET

LEXINGTON — Christian Endeavor societies of the three Lexington churches will open their fall schedule of meetings with a combined program at 6:30 p. m. Sunday in the First Presbyterian church. Music will be led by David Snyder and Betty Scott. Plans for the fall and winter work will be discussed.

STRIKES 'FOOLS' GOLD'

CLEVELAND — (INS) — William Miller, a WPA worker, thought he had struck gold when he drove his pick into soft shale while working on a leveling project at Parma. A number of bright, glistening particles came to light. Today the museum of natural history informed Miller the particles were iron pyrites, known as "fools' gold."

COUNTY SHARES IN SALES TAX

Receives $8,712 From State As Its Part of September Receipts.

Richland county received $8,712 from the state today as the county's share of sales tax funds for September.

Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said the funds would be allowed to accumulate for about three months before they are distributed to county sub-divisions for local operating expenses.

The allocation of one month's receipts gives each city, village and township such a small amount that it is not worthwhile to allocate them that often, Wolfe said.

FRENCH READY TO SPURN OFFER

Find Peace Proposals Made by Hitler in Reichstag Talk 'Inacceptable.'

sign an arms limitation pact, French circles said.

French government sources said they saw "proof" of what they termed the "bad faith" of Hitler in an accurate and false statements regarding the Polish war. For instance, they said, Hitler described the attack of Warsaw as beginning Sept. 25, whereas it actually began with a German air raid on Sept. 1 at 5:30 a. m.

Hitler's speech probably will be an historical document, French officials said, because of the fuehrer's threat—so considered by the French—to destroy Strasbourg, Mulhousie and other open towns, if his "final" offer is rejected.

The French in particular rejected Hitler's bid for an armistice based on acceptance of the Russian-German dismemberment of Poland.

There was considerable encouragement here in reports that Premier Benito Mussolini had refused in advance to act as intermediary for Hitler in seeking to induce the allies to call off the war on his terms.

would consider the proposals "completely unacceptable" since they fail to meet any of the fundamental allied war aims.

It was pointed out authoritatively that Chamberlain had already stated that Britain cannot accept mere assurances from the Nazi government.

Hitler failed to satisfy such British aims as the restoration of Polish and Czech independence, it was pointed out, and he failed to mention the fundamental British aim—elimation of the Hitlerite system of violence—except to say that Naziism never could be liquidated in Germany.

The British generally regarded his proposals for disarmament and warfare regulation as vague and unsatisfactory.

HELD IN THEFT

Boy, 16, Charged With Stealing Cigarets From Warehouse.

A 16-year-old boy was held in the detention home today by police in connection with the theft yesterday afternoon of several packages of cigarets from the Central Fruit company.

Officers said the youth, only recently released from the Boy's Industrial school at Lancaster, was caught stealing the cigarets by an employe of the firm.

DIES IN GUNFIRE

Desperado Killed 24 Hours After Robbing Bank.

TULSA—(AP)—A young desperado who robbed a Picher, Okla., bank of $1,195 with a bottle of fake "nitroglycerine" was shot and killed by a Tulsa detective only 24 hours later.

Detective W. E. Wooley spotted Al Rice, 23, in a taxicab late yesterday. He ordered "come along." Rice reached for a pistol. Woolley fired three times. Rice fell dead.

BISHOPS PRAY

100 of Them Say Prayers For George Cardinal Mundelein.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The soul of George Cardinal Mundelein, five times absolved, was entrusted to his God today in one of the most majestic ceremonies of the Catholic church.

Only about 2,000 could be crowded into the cathedral, but thousands of the faithful gathered outside and along the streets which formed the route of the funeral entourage.

ARREST YOUTHS

SHELBY — Two Crestline boys were arrested in Shelby Thursday for failure to observe traffic regulations while riding motor scooters, police said. The boys, 14 and 19 years of age, were released by police, but their bikes were held for bond for their appearance before Mayor D. B. Young today. One scooter did not have the necessary license for use on the public highways, police said.

TWO MADISON GROUPS ELECT

Girl Reserves and Latin Club Organize for New Year at Township High School.

Officers of two groups at Madison high school elected at organization meetings were announced today.

The Girl Reserves at their first meeting elected new officers and made plans for several activities. Officers named are Helen Tucker, president; Marcia Plumb, vice president; Dorothy Butler, secretary-treasurer and Miss Gladys MacDonald, adviser.

Included on the year's program will be the distribution of baskets to needy families at Thanksgiving, a program at Christmas before the student body, the annual dance at the Y. W. C. A. during the Christmas holidays, a formal initiation in January, and the annual mother and daughter banquet in May. Barbara Schuttera was named chairman of a committee to collect sales tax stamps. The group will hold its next meeting Oct. 23.

* * *

Jack Shellhaas was elected to head the Latin club during the 1939-40 year. Others chosen were Elwyn Swisher, vice president; Donna Mae Porter, secretary-treasurer, and Jean Perry, program chairman.

Two committees were appointed by the president. One named to arrange for the initiation of new members includes Wayne McBride, Clifford Bemiller, Gladys Perry and Clariss Buck, and a committee of four was named to plan for a club wiener roast. On the committee are Joe Subich, chairman, Esther Snyder, Marcia Plumb and Douglas MacDowall.

EXAM CITIES SET

Civil Service Tests For Prison Guard to Be Held Next Month.

Civil service examinations for guards at the Mansfield reformatory, Ohio penitentiary and the London Prison farm will be held late in November in Columbus, Cleveland, Toledo, and Cincinnati, it was announced today at Columbus.

Examinations for a number of other state positions will be held Oct. 30 to Nov. 2 in the same cities, while those for state highway jobs will be conducted in December, the Civil Service commission said.

CRUISER BURNS

Lake Erie Coast Guards Search for Possible Victims.

SANDUSKY — (INS) — Coastguardsmen at Marblehead station and Sandusky police were attempting to determine today whether any lives were lost when a 30-foot cruiser caught fire and exploded off Sand Point last night.

Charles Zelms of Johnson's Island said the boat caught fire shortly after leaving Sandusky and before he could reach it in a rowboat it exploded and sank.

BACKS CAPPER

TOPEKA, Kans.—(AP)—Alf M. Landon today endorsed Sen. Arthur Capper, R., Kans., for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940.

The 1936 Republican presidential candidate said he was "wholeheartedly in favor of William Allen White's suggestion that the Kansas delegation back Senator Capper at the convention next year."

RITES ARE SET

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Mrs. Dora Bell Mitchell, 67, of Nankin, who died at Samaritan hospital here early Thursday morning, will be held at the Mowery funeral home at 2 p. m. Saturday. Burial is to be made in the Ashland cemetery.

Mrs. Mitchell, preceded in death by her husband three years ago, was born Oct. 20, 1871.

OBERLIN'S FACULTY AT ODDS WITH PREXY IN VIEWS ON WAR

(By International News Service)

OBERLIN, O.—A wide rift in Oberlin college faculty ranks appeared certain today after 25 instructors, professors and department heads signed a letter stating that "Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists" wanted this country to surrender to Hitler."

On Sept. 20, Dr. Ernest Hatch Wilkins, president of the famed liberal college, said that repeal of the arms embargo would cause sabotage in American industrial plants and would "enrage Germany."

The letter signed by the faculty members and published in the Oberlin Review, student newspaper, declared:

"This war seems certain to be long and bitter, but all its waste cannot be compared with the evil consequences of capitulating to Hitler. . .

"It is. . .such a surrender that Borah, Coughlin, the Bund and the Communists propose."

Leader of those signing the letter was F. B. Artz, history professor. Among the others signing were R. A. Jelliffe, novelist and head of the English department; Oscar Jaszi, head of the political science department; Marguerite Wadsworth, dean of women, and D. M. Love, secretary of the college.

UNION BATTLES REPUBLIC SUIT

Claims $7,500,000 Action for Strike Damages Lacks Legal Cause for Action.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The CIO-Steel Workers Organizing committee contended today that Republic Steel corporation's $7,500,000 damage suit, stemming from the 1937 "little steel" strike, "is not within the terms or provisions" of the Sherman and Clayton acts.

The corporation brought the suit under these federal statutes, charging that the Committee of Industrial Organizations and the SWOC "entered into a combination, confederation and conspiracy in restraint of trade" by forcing complete or partial closing of Republic plants.

Three SWOC units, listed among hundreds of defendants, asserted in their answer on file today: "This action is improperly brought under the provisions of either or both of said acts and this court is, therefore without jurisdiction."

The lodges — All Nations, No. 1,200, Canton; New Deal, No. 1,124 and Square Deal, No. 1,566, both of Massillon—also said the action "is barred by the statue of limitations."

"The complaint fails to state a claim against these defendants upon which relief can be granted," the joint answer said, adding that the SWOC units deny allegations of Republic that they blockaded and surrounded plants, formed pickets into "armed mobs" and "provoked commotion and riots x x x and fired upon law enforcement officers."

SUMMER AGAIN

Fair and Mild Saturday Forecast By Weatherman.

It will be more like summer than autumn tonight and Saturday.

The weatherman forecast fair and slightly cooler weather for tonight and mild Saturday. At noon today the mercury had reached 74 degrees. Yesterday's high was 76.

The 65-degree average for the past 24 hours was seven degrees above normal. Last night's low was 65 degrees.

GET PAYROLL

Bandits Rob Cleveland Auditor of $2,500; Then Escape.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Two bandits forced Sam Savage, an auditor for the Smith-Oby company, to surrender a $2,500 payroll today and escaped in Savage's automobile.

RITES SATURDAY

BUTLER—Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Bunker Hill Presbyterian church for Milton W. Forbes, 74, of near here, who died Wednesday at Mansfield General hospital after a brief illness. Rev. Charles Rath of Wooster will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

He is survived by his wife Anna, and a son Clarence, at home; a brother, Charles, and a sister, Mrs. Nettie Hammond of Butler, and two grandchildren.

ANDREWS OUT?

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt gave the first official intimation today that Elmer F. Andrews would leave the position of federal wage-hour administrator.

Rumors have recurred in Washington recently that Andrews would become alien property custodian and be replaced by Colonel Philip Fleming of the army engineers.

Asked at a press conference whether he had anything to say about those reports, the president replied not yet. But in response to another inquiry, whether the delay on an announcement was due to the fact that no nominations were being sent to the senate while it is considering neutrality legislation, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that was one of the reasons.

From that answer, reporters drew the inference that Andrews might be on the way out.

TUNNEL ABLAZE

Trains Halted as Flames Spread; Incendiarism Probed.

BELLAIRE—(AP)—Fire in the Glencoe tunnel 12 miles west of here halted all east-west Baltimore & Ohio trains today as authorities sought to learn if locomotive sparks or incendiarisms were responsible.

Railroad officials said that burning timbers 300 feet from the tunnel's east end might block traffic several days.

PASTOR DOOMED

Death Sentence Order For Murder Of Daughter For Insurance.

CAMDEN, N. J.—(AP)—A sentence of death in the electric chair next month for the murder of his daughter hung today over the bushy head of Walter (Iron Mike) Dworecki, Camden Polish pastor convicted of having the 18-year-old girl strangled so he could get her $2,500 life insurance.

Two months, almost to the day, since auburn-haired Wanda Dworecki's crumpled body was found in rain-soaked weeds near a high school atheltic field a jury returned a first degree murder verdict last night.

CLEVELAND TO OPEN 'WONDER' BRIDGE TONIGHT

Newly Developed Vapor Lamps to Illuminate $7,000,000 Span on Lakefront.

When Cleveland's new $7,000,000 bridge is formally opened tonight, it will be illuminated with one of the modern miracles of light worked out in the laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

The new bridge, a Cuyahoga county WPA project, connects the west side of Cleveland with the new east side lakefront highway, so that motorists may drive from Lakewood on the west to Gordon park on the east of Cleveland without going through the business section.

After tonight an "electric eye" will turn on the illumination whenever there is not enough natural light, day or night, for safe driving. The "eye" will control 139 powerful sodium vapor lamps, which are installed in aluminum butterfly fixtures along the bridge, every 110 feet. The light is 36 times the brightness of bright moonlight, engineers say.

Emit Golden Light.

Each lamp is a miniature electron gun. Streams of electrons are fired through the glass tube from a cathode or "firing chamber" at one end. Inside the eight and one-half inch tube is sodium gas, which when bombarded by the electron streams, emits energy in the form of golden light.

The butterfly unit is so shaped that the light is directed on the bridge roadway, with none of it wasted on the areas that do not need it.

The opening ceremony will start at 7:30 p. m. today, and will include a parade, a sham air battle over the bridge, and a speaking program on the bridge. City, county and state officials who worked to make the bridge possible, as well as workmen who constructed the bridge, will take part in the ceremonies.

WAGON USED 107 YEARS

NEW CONCORD, O.—(U.P.)— R. Y. White, of New Concord, is using on his farm a wagon which has been in the family for 107 years. His father had the wagon built to his orders in 1832 when the family was living near Washington, Pa.

New Cleveland Bridge Visible 20 Miles at Night

ASKS $10,000 IN NEW SUIT FILED IN FATAL CRASH

Jeromesville Youth Plaintiff in Second Action Against South American.

A second damage suit for $10,000 had been filed in common pleas court today as the result of a fatal traffic accident last Saturday on route 30 in East Mansfield.

Naming Nicholas Vale Quintero, owner of one of the three cars which figured in the accident, as the defendant, the action was brought by Hugh Hootman of Jeromesville, one of the four persons injured in the crash.

A suit for $50,000 was filed yesterday against Quintero by Wilbert Goon, Mansfield, husband of Mrs. Ethel Goon, who was killed in the mishap.

Father Files Suit.

Since Hootman is only 18 years old, the suit was filed by Floyd Hootman, his father. The petition states that the youth received cuts and bruises on his neck and face and head injuries. He was a passenger in a car driven by Vernon Fowler, co-defendant in the other damage case.

Bernabe Richardson, 44, New York City, driver of the car owned by Quintero, is facing grand jury action here on a charge of second degree manslaughter in connection with Mrs. Goon's death.

Quintero left Mansfield Wednesday night and authorities here have no information as to his whereabouts. He speaks no English and through an interpreter he told officers he is the owner of a radio station in Venezuela, South America.

DIAMOND PRICES ARE ADVANCING!

DIAMONDS SOAR
Follow Commodities in Price Increase Due to War.

Sugar and beans were not the only commodities to shoot skyward with the outbreak of war in Europe. Mansfield jewelers have announced that the price of diamonds has increased as much as 35 per cent.

They point out that there are several reasons for this. While the United States is the largest buyer of diamonds in the world, Great Britain controls the world's biggest supply and Holland and Belgium do most of the cutting.

Diamonds may be used in making war machinery and as a result Great Britain has placed an embargo on them. In Holland and Belgium the 40 per cent of the diamond cutters have been mobilized for military duty while in the United States speculators and investors are buying them up, jewelers said.

Prices have increased as high as 35 per cent on smaller stones, up to a quarter of a carat, and 20 per cent on larger stones.

From Mansfield News-Journal Wed., Oct. 4th

GADGETEERS, LIKE TENNYSON, DIP FAR INTO THE FUTURE

SALT LAKE CITY—(U.P.)—Within the next few years, 30,000 gadgeteers hope to pioneer the way:

For chemical apparatus that will enable airplanes to fly over forest fires and put them out — poof—just like that.

At least, so says the elected chief of the National Inventors League, Albert G. (for Gadget) Burns of Alameda, Cal., as he appraised Salt Lake City as the location for the group's convention next spring.

Burns said he represents the "nuts" who retire into their darkened lairs and with feverish eyes and tousled hair defy the sneers and jeers of friends to emerge with the 1,200 watchamacallums that are patented every week in Washington.

But, he hastened to add, the "screwball inventors" are "the creative thinkers who have made America great."

Every year hundreds of them assemble to display their latest brain children. After them troop scores of manufacturers from all nations, who eye the gadgets with wonder, realize the impossible has been done, and proceed to market the new labor-saving devices.

Burns insists the world would be a better place to live in and scores of new gadgets would come faster if the inventors were really turned loose.

Several things conspire to hold them back, he said.

First of all, agitation over technological unemployment finds its culmination in proposals to declare a moratorium on all inventions

The inventors' chief has only the greatest scorn for such moves.

"I remember," Burns explained, "when they deplored mechanical refrigeration on the grounds it would drive thousands of men out of their jobs in the ice business. But more people are employed in ice distribution now than before, because mechanical refrigeration has sold the public on the idea that food must be kept cold."

Second, the inventors' ideas are kept in check by established industries. The motion picture interests Burns charged, tried to retard television, and the automotive industry has fought against Diesel development.

Finally, the inventor lacks financial aid it is in that respect Congress makes its contribution, Burns said

Although Salt Lake City has not been definitely chosen as the site for next spring's meeting, Burns said he is looking for a city whose residents will make the gadgeteers feel at home.

"Why not Salt Lake?" Burns asks.

Burns is known as the inventor of the first saw-toothed breadknife, and also developed the first auto lock, a gadget that fastened to the steering wheel, in the days before the ignition lock was perfected.

SCHOOL TO BE STATE ARCHIVE

ROME—(U.P.)—The ancient Papal University of Rome, built in the 15th century, which for many years had housed various faculties of the University of Rome, will be used as a state archive.

The "Sapienza" as it was called was deserted by students when the Rome University City was built in 1935.

HOSTORIA LOG

NORRISTOWN, Pa. —(U.P.)— A log book of the U. S. S. Constitution was bequeathed to a grandson in the will of Mrs. Helen S. Clayton, whose estate was valued at $209,195.

Trusty Who Escaped 6 Weeks Ago Returned From Columbus.

Charles Miller, 27, of Columbus, an Ohio State reformatory trusty who escaped from the Osborn honor camp six weeks ago, was back in the institution today.

He had been held in jail in Columbus following his capture by two Columbus detectives who accused him of a series of petty thefts.

Miller fled Aug. 20, after serving little less than two years on a one to seven year sentence on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1939.

A Century of Progress

WHEN the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club celebrates its 20th anniversary next week, it will use the general theme of "One Hundred Years of Women's Progress In the United States."

The past century has changed the status of women as definitely and as miraculously as radio has changed the communications system. And for this women can take the credit largely to themselves, for their efforts toward economic independence and their contributions to business and the professions are constantly challenged.

There are in the United States today 10,000,000 employed women, which is a far cry indeed from 100 years ago when few, if any, women found employment outside the home. In the first half of the century when women began to fight their way upward in the economic scheme, they ventured timidly into such feminine precincts as dressmaking, millinery and teaching school.

During the Civil war years they gained a foothold in clerical work and in retail business concerns. One of the first, if not the first, women in Mansfield to step outside the confines of "convention" to engage in the "unladylike" business of bookkeeping was the late Miss Malvina Brinkerhoff, who became identified with her father in his business—to the horror of her friends.

Compare with those first venturesome steps the status of women in business and professions today. In Ohio alone there are more than a half million employed women, according to the 1930 federal census. Breaking down these figures we find that there are 115,898 clerical workers, 8,064 women agriculturists; 60,000 in trades; 221 lawyers and judges, 360 physicians, 212 clergymen, 42,464 school teachers. And they have made places for themselves as authors, actresses, dentists, aviators, social service workers, executives in almost every line of business; public offices—in fact of about 530 gainful occupations, women have made good in 508 of them.

When the National Business and Professional Women's club was organized it was for the purpose of interpreting their achievements to the public and maintaining their own status; now it has progressed to the place where its major purpose is to recognize the contributions of women as citizens.

The Mansfield club, which was organized in 1924 with 153 members representing 51 vocations, will take part in the national celebration of Anniversary week, and at the anniversary dinner Wednesday night they will hear a speaker review the progress of women during the past century.

Time for Prompt Action

IT IS to be hoped that the full strength of all the available law enforcement agencies will be called into use to prevent a repetition of the abduction of the eight-year-old Mansfield girl, reported to authorities yesterday.

The fact that the child came to no harm should be no reason for a lack of vigor in the search for the man who lured her into his car, drove her into the country and finally released her.

To the contrary, efforts to put a stop to this sort of thing should be intensified. This is not the first occurrence of the kind—there have been seven previous such incidents.

The assumption that a person who would do such a thing is "harmless" as officers were reported to believe seems to be a poor one—the man, if the same person is responsible for all eight such incidents, is only "harmless" because nothing actually tragic has occurred yet.

Even those who believe the man to be harmless would hesitate to guarantee that nothing tragic will occur if he is permitted to remain at liberty.

Meanwhile, parents will do well to heed the advice of school officials and warn their youngsters to be especially wary of strangers who offer them automobile rides.

Unemployment Test Ahead

IF BUSINESS continues to improve and employment to spread, we're going to have a chance to observe one important matter which has been much discussed and little understood throughout the depression years. That is, how many people willing and able to work remain unemployed even in good times?

Many officials and lawmakers have regarded unemployment and relief as the special problems of a period of economic distress. That view has hampered the working out of an intelligent solution to the acute problem.

On the other hand, many other people have claimed that technology and the machine would throw more and more workers out of jobs and that only ever-shorter hours could meet the situation.

Each of these views doubtless contains a grain of truth and considerable misunderstanding. It is important that we have accurate figures about employment, technology, hours and wages, distribution, and all the rest. Until we do, it will remain difficult to find the right answers to the insistent questions of work relief, doles, jobs, and so on.

"Real Wealth"

VERY creditable to the business men concerned is a resolution adopted by the recent convention of the National Tool Builders' Association, whose members have many "war orders."

The tool men went on record as "opposed to warfare and in favor of the maintenance of honorable peace." They also said they "hold firmly to their conviction that real wealth is created only by the production of those goods and services which add to the possessions and welfare of all the people."

They are right, of course. They have made a simple, honest statement of sound business principles. But it seems significant to anyone who remembers the hoorah spirit of many representatives of American business in the last war.

They're Just Too Good

OUTSIDE of Cincinnati—and even there the faith of the natives must be somewhat shaken—probably everyone interested in baseball has just about conceded that the New York Yankees are going to win the 1939 world series.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—After one of the bitterest fights yet waged between tunnel and bridge authorities, the government has stepped in and killed the proposed new bridge from the Battery to Brooklyn. This ends a quarrel which found everybody taking sides.

But the issue is not strictly local at all. It has to do with a widespread coastal defense plan, for the Secretary of War's reason for banning the bridge is that it would hamper navigation in time of war—that is, enemy bombs might destroy the bridge and block entry to the East river.

In the newsreel theaters along Broadway and in the great railway terminals are many scenes of giant coastal artillery in action, but the voices describing the scenes do not identify them. They say, "Here they are, folks, our big coast defense guns, but we can't tell you where."

These guns are all along the seaboard, guarding harbors and strategic points. Some of them appear so large as to be unreal. They are disappearing guns which sink back into deep, impregnable cement housings when they fire. They are supposed to be powerful enough to destroy ships miles at sea.

* * *

THE death knell of the proposed bridge was a bitter blow to Park Commissioner Moses, who had set his heart on a majestic piece of engineering work that would arch its back from the foot of Manhattan to the Brooklyn side. For others the War Department's decision was hailed with satisfaction.

After the ruling was announced, word came that the famous Brooklyn Bridge, which Steve Brody immortalized by his tragic death leap, and the Tri-Borough Bridge may be supplanted by tunnels. In any case another tunnel is to be hollowed out of the rock and silt under East River.

Manhattan has so many tunnels leading to and from it that you would think they would run into each other. But the pressure of traffic demands some new outlet.

Manhattan traffic has been and always will be a mess. The new tunnel at best can only relieve the crush. I really believe the day will come when some sort of legislation will parcel out the privilege of driving in the city. Perhaps some alphabetical scheme will be devised, permitting car owners from A to M to drive in the city on alternate days, and those from N to Z on the other days.

* * *

SHOULD such a time ever come you will hear a scream to high heaven from the car manufacturers and from the owners themselves, who pay taxes—and in New York they are heavy taxes—for the privilege of driving automobiles.

Nevertheless conditions, despite efficient police and new sky-ways, are so adverse that frequently it takes you an hour to drive across town—a distance that normally should be covered in seven or eight minutes.

The reaction of the newspapers to the War Department's decision was typical of the Metropolitan press on any important issue. The press is this town has always been divided, and that part of it which wanted the bridge was outspoken in its criticism of the ruling. On the other hand, those who desired defeat of the project accepted the ruling "as the only possible end that could come to such an absurd proposal."

Anyway, we get a new tunnel. You must come over and drive through it some time.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Oct. 6, 1919.

Twenty-five members of Madison lodge, K. of P., went to Crestline to attend district meeting.

Offices of several Mansfield dentists were visited by burglars but little of value taken.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Perl returned from a visit in Philadelphia and New York.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Oct. 6, 1934.

The President Is a Powers-ful Man

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Much of the emergency presidential authority about which the senate is so curious was given the chief executive in the high-pressure days of the bank crises in 1933, although many of his powers trace straight back to the England of long ago.

From official files made available to us by the Congressional Library we have gathered samples the senate itself might have had for the asking. However, the senate went through the business of adopting a resolution asking the attorney general to give it a consolidation summary of emergency and other powers of the president. Some senators say privately he is getting too many; a view scoffed at by others.

* * *

Foreign Affairs

The constitution gives the president almost exclusive powers in foreign affairs. For treaties he must win approval of the senate, but all by himself he can enter into very important little arrangements such as the Lansing-Ishii agreement of 1917 respecting immigration of Japanese.

Publication of World War documents amazed many readers at the tremendous steps President Wilson had taken in negotiating with the Allies. At one point he laid a peace plan before the Allies under such circumstances that some historians say he had committed the United States to take sides with them in event Germany failed to accept the terms, which were markedly favorable to the Allies.

The president has great power to commit the country far toward one side or another, although any actual declaration of war must come through congress.

Congress granted scads of authority to the president in the cradle days of the depression. An act of March 9, 1933, authorized him to regulate foreign exchange during a national emergency, a power once largely in private hands. May 12, 1933, he was given power to print $3,000,000,000 of greenback money—outright inflation—and to pare down the gold-weight of the dollar. Republicans claim to have filibustered him out of some of the powers last session—but many believe they failed.

An act of June 19, 1934, gives the president control over all avenues of wire and air communication. Pre-World-War acts gave him power to demand right of way for the troops and war supplies in time of "threatened" war, and to take over the railroads or "any system of transportation" in event of actual war.

Under an act of Aug. 30, 1935, he can suspend, in time of emergency, provisions of the act relating to wage rates for laborers and mechanics employed on public buildings.

Under an act of Sept. 1, 1937, he can (and lately did) suspend the sugar quotas.

No Snapshots

An act of Jan. 12, 1938, permitted him to prohibit photographing of naval or military installations.

An act of June 6, 1939, authorized the president to close the exchanges in time of emergency for 90 days while an act of the year before authorized him to pump money into any wobbly insurance company.

A power dating back to April 11, 1898, permits the president to have fortifications erected any place in a time of urgency without so much as a how-do-you-do as to who owns the property to be taken over.

And just a sample of powers he has during war time, he could clean out all liquor houses around army or navy reservations, and even around coal mines. And that isn't all. In the last war the president could prohibit use of grain even to MAKE liquor.

Listen, World!

Civilization Can't Perish.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT'S a tough job, trying to write a column these days.

What can you say? What dare you think? Everything you've built on, believed in, going smash. And always, with every mail, there's that flood of furious or frantic letters, saying that civilization is on its way out.

Well, I'm neither very brave nor very wise. But there's one thing I know, beyond all doubting, and that's this—

You can dent it, plenty. Double cross it. Expose its hooey and hypocrisy. And wipe out its material achievements. But no man or group of men—however fierce or ruthless, persuasive or powerful—CAN WRECK CIVILIZATION.

They may bomb cathedrals, butcher babies and blast homes, hospitals, schools and shops, farms and factories off the face of the earth. But Civilization will still go on. For Civilization lies beyond the reach of guns and the range of poison gas. Laws cannot touch it nor prisons bind it. It has nothing to do with territories or treaties. It does not depend on culture, mechanical ingenuity or scientific discovery. Remove all these . . . blot them out of existence . . . return man to his savage jungle . . . take away all his hard won wisdom—

For Civilization is not a Tangible Achievement. It is a spiritual hunger . . . a vague but persistent outreaching . . . a dream in the heart of man. And nothing can ever quench that dream.

It has been said that "if there were no God, it would be necessary to invent him." And the same necessity that would make Man invent a Savior lies behind that desire—that divine discontent—we call civilization. Look back through history and you can trace the development of that desire . . . a development that has never ceased nor faltered, even though the race was reduced, again and again, to its bloody beginnings.

It brought man up out of his marshes — that discontent . . . down from the trees where he scurried with his cousin apes . . . out of his smoke-blacked caves . . . away from his filthy altars where his human sacrifices steamed and stank. It has changed him from a solitary skulker to a tribal unit . . . from a dweller in tents to a builder of towns . . . from the weakest and most stupid of all mammals to the upright, inspired son of God. It was in him in the beginning . . . it will be in him to the end. As long as a puff of breath and a shred of flesh remains 'round a sliver of bone, the ferment of Civilization will work its miracle in man. You can no more stop it than you can wrench the stars from their courses—or lift the seas from their basins.

There have been hysterical Hitlers before, sulky Stalins and bellowing Mussolinis. There have been invasions—massacres. And governments have towered and fallen again and again. But always and always man's secret dream—God's hidden spark—has gone on. And nothing can ever stop it.

What can you believe in—build on? You can believe and build on that. And you can find what you so greatly need in these hectic days—a mission and a meaning for your life, a dignity and deep delight—in that.

For the real war is not being fought in Poland or France. It is being fought in the spirits of men. And each of us, willy nilly, has his place in that war. Each defends—or betrays — that deathless spark. Each fights with Jesus—or Judas!

Ohio Anecdotes

Ardent Patriot.

New Yorkers knew him as the man who carried off the lead equestrian statue of King George III, which he presented to New York women to mould into bullets to use against the king's subjects.

Wolcott as an Indian commissioner in 1784 negotiated the treaty of Fort Stanwix, making peace with the six nations of Indians holding the Northwest Territory. In 1789 he assisted in treaty making with the Wyandot Indians, extinguishing their claims to the Western Reserve.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One thing you don't want to overlook in gauging the European war situation is the temperament of Josef Stalin.

Stalin is a Georgian. And to those who have studied European races and temperaments that means a great deal. Stalin, the Georgian, never forgets. He nurses grudges indefinitely. He nursed a grudge against Chamberlain and the British, who at one time tried to persuade Hitler to turn his conquistadorial activities toward the Ukraine rather than Poland.

But you can write it down in the book that he has not forgotten his grudge against Hitler. That gentleman's words against Russia once were far worse than his denunciation of Britain.

Cabinet Babies.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of the Democratic National Committee "Chip" Robert take a lot of punches at each other, but between their wives it is different.

When Mrs. Ickes' baby was born, Mrs. Robert happened to be at Flagstaff, Ariz. Having produced an offspring herself only a few months before, she sent the following telegram to Mrs. Ickes:

Some time later the following reply from Mrs. Ickes:

"Sorry to have been unable to thank you for your telegram of congratulations before this but I have just returned from the hospital. As you say, it's no Sunday school picnic, but anyone as handsome as little Harold is certainly worth it."

* * *

Answer to Coughlin.

To many of the U. S. Catholic hierarchy there seemed to be more to the recent editorial in the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, than just a fulsome laudation of the president's foreign policy. They also saw in it a pointed admonition to Father Coughlin.

It has never been disclosed that following the sharp public rebuke administered to Father Coughlin last spring by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of Chicago, Coughlin followers began reluging the Pope with letters defending the radio priest and denouncing both Sheil and his late friend, Cardinal Mundelein. At one time as many as 8,000 letters a week were received by the Vatican.

The Vatican is always glad to hear from the faithful, but this bold pressure campaign was something different and caused much raising of eyebrows. Nothing was said at that time, but late in July, Bishop Sheil sailed for Rome after conferring with Roosevelt. It is known that he had an important audience with the Pope.

Then, just as Sheil landed in New York, and the day before he lunched a second time with Roosevelt, the Osservatore Romano published its highly significant editorial comment.

War Department War.

Secretary of War Woodring has his own version of how the president happened to give a press conference spanking to Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, for writing a foreword to a book on war mobilization. The president also inferentially spanked Woodring himself for having tattled on his assistant secretary of war.

"I was very much embarrassed that the president should have indicated that I called the book to his attention," Mr. Woodring tells friends, "for it was Miss Perkins who brought the matter up at cabinet meeting. She said that an officer from the war department had brought the book to her, saying that it represented the view of the department.

"'What are my pacifist friends going to say to this?' Miss Perkins asked; and I said, 'Oh, yes, that's something Mr. Johnson wrote a preface to. They asked me to write a preface several months ago, but I declined.'

Neutrality Debate.

The chosen 96 are in their seats. It looks like a 100 per cent attendance. Newspapers are put away; senators actually are listening. Around them on the floor level, and above them on the gallery level, the great chamber is filled. Members of the house of representatives fill the couches and standing space about the walls.

A page boy comes in, leading blind, snow-haired ex-Senator Gore. Senator Guffey stands against the wall; somebody has pre-empted his seat. The chamber is so quiet that the only sound to compete with the speaker is the sighing of the air-cooling system.

LaFollette takes one himself, and sneaks another to Senator Borah. Borah's voice, strong at the opening of his sentences, trails off weakly at the end. He needs the cough drop.

The man who has staked more than anyone else in this debate—Vandenberg of Michigan — leans back in his chair, listening as hard as he chews. His jaws keep up a constant rhythm on a single piece of gum.

Merry-Go-Round.

The crisis has moderated for Cordell Hull, and he has gone back to his game of croquet . . . Washington postmen don't like to see congress come back to town; it means more work in delivering the Congressional Record (full text of debate) every morning. . . . All discussion of possible resumption of dollar debt payment by Brazil and Colombia has been abandoned. Both countries are hard hit by the war's curtailment of coffee markets. . . . Brazil is turning to U. S. for coal formerly purchased in Germany and England. . . . The president consistently smokes one brand of cigarets, but the manufacturer has never made ad copy of the fact. . . . The LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee is taking a look-see into the alleged strike-breaking activities of E. P. Fryant, PWA inspector, who took over the engineering work of the Edwards hotel in Jackson, Miss., during a strike of hotel employes.

Making Sauerkraut

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

Last year I visited my old Dutch neighbor when his good wife, Katrina, was making schmeirkase for market. This time I came upon them just at dusk. Their thrifty looking cottage was surrounded by flaming zinnias, old fashioned coxcombs and newly budded asters.

When I rapped I heard the muffled footsteps of a portly man in soft-soled slippers, who approached the door with a small lamp in his hand. As he opened it, I stood upon the little stoop, where leaning sprays of bloom brushed against my clothes.

"Katrina and me, ve are out in the kitchen making sauerkraut. It iss the first ve haf made yet . . ." I followed him.

In one corner I saw a pile of thirty or more heads of Danish cabbage. In the center of the kitchen stood Katrina wearing a large checked oilcloth apron around her rotund figure, and holding a large, round crisp head of cabbage in both hands.

"I told Jake it is time to make kraut, and ve started in wenig spat this evening. Die cutter, she vas made in Hungary and sent across to us."

I noticed it was hand-made, and had three blades ten inches wide. A dovetailed box a foot square and ten inches deep slid easily along the outer grooves. Into this was placed the well trimmed head for cutting. A half barrel keg stood near, with an open top. From it was exuded the unmistakable odor of last year's sauerkraut. Into this my good friend sifted the clean, moist slaw, added some salt and stamped it down with a long handled wooden plunger, until the juice was visible above the surface.

As he cut some heads I heard them split apart, even as the knife had touched the outer leaves. I saw the old man's satisfied smile as he placed the fragments in the box for his wife to cut.

"Dis kraut iss better in the spring, when a mold iss on, above the brei (broth). Before dis, Katrina she cook it mit backbone, or sometimes mit speck. Sometime she cook mit schnitze und knep. Ven all iss gone but brei, I keep it zu drinken, und it tastes goot, ober.

"All vinter long this keep Katrina und me from gettin' sick. Und if in spring some brei iss left, it kicks as strong as' mein two mules. Some city fellers calls it die cocks tails—but me und Katrina ve know it for vat it iss."

BOARD RE-LETS 13 CONTRACTS FOR EQUIPMENT

The Mansfield board of education today had re-let 13 contracts totaling $69,971 for equipment for the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high school buildings.

The contracts were tenatively awarded several weeks ago, but they were rescinded when PWA officials failed to approve the transfer of money for the equipment from the construction fund to the equipment fund.

Nearly half of the funds for the city's two new school buildings was provided by PWA and all contracts are subject to PWA approval.

Keeps Within Limit.

In re-letting the contracts, the board had to deduct equipment items totaling $5,062 from the total amount of the contract to keep the maximum within the $70,000 approved for equipment.

Two Mansfield firms—the Charles Ritter company and the W. E. Jones Piano House—received orders totaling about $8,300 in awards. The Ritter company will furnish office equipment and window shades at $6,151 and the Jones Piano House received the order for pianos at $2,183.

The remainder of the equipment included seats, chairs, lockers, and kitchen furnishings for the home economics rooms.

Other firms receiving contracts were the Dobson-Evans company, Brodhead Garrett company, Kitcheneering company, American Seating company, Consolidated School Supply company, Universal Scenic company, Lyon Metal Products company, J. E. Porter corporation, Fred Medart company and the Brewer Titchener corporation.

The shades of 1914 are falling once more upon the world. Roads are choked with tanks and troops moving up to the "front." The banshee wail of air raid sirens sends civilians scurrying to shelter. Torpedoes streak their white feather of foam on the seas. Big guns roar. Again the nations of Europe are locked in a great conflict whose outcome no one can foretell. The biggest news story since "The War To End Wars" is unfolding.

Well informed Americans are making it a point to keep posted on the turbulent rush of events which are piecing out a grim new chapter of modern history. For an intelligent opinion, they want all the news—from the battlefields on land, the submarine zones at sea, from the warring capitals, the neighboring neutrals and the sensitive commodity markets of the world.

This newspaper is fully prepared to bring its readers that complete story. It is prepared because it is a member of The Associated Press, the world-wide news gathering organization which today maintains the largest and most experienced news staff ever assembled in Europe. There are more than 2,500 alert correspondents on that staff—many times more than the number of men assigned to report the World War for AP a quarter of a century ago.

Several outstanding members of this large, carefully coordinated news gathering army are pictured above. They represent only a few of the 110 American-trained newspaper men located in key spots to cover the news as it occurs and to direct the work of the far flung auxiliary force of resident correspondents and accredited reporters. Many of the men have had previous experience with modern war, some dating back to World War days.

All these men have only one job—to report the facts accurately, promptly and fully for 1,400 member newspapers from Maine to Key West, from New York to San Francisco, and to report those facts without sensational embellishment or wartime hysteria. The minute-by-minute reports of these correspondents are flashed into this newspaper's office day and night and our own staff hurries the dispatches to waiting presses for regular or extra editions, depending on the gravity of the news.

You will find the complete STORY of The Great War at your fingertips in this newspaper every day.

CHAPTER XXIII

Fleming Stone went back to Silver Hill, not greatly elated by anything he had learned in the village. He was fighting against almost unwelcome feeling of failure. The case was not one to be looked at as a whole. It had so many by-products and side lines that he couldn't see the forest for the trees.

Stone, interested, stepped inside. He searched everywhere, with his eyes, but saw no item of furniture or ornament that he had not studied before to no avail.

He turned to Hetty.

"Yes, sir. It stood right here, where the shifferneer is now."

"And when it was moved the books were changed. Where are the old books that used to be in the bookcase when it was in this room?"

"Up in the attic, Mr. Stone."

"I want to look at them. How do I get up there?"

"There's a little staircase in the ell, that goes up to the very room you want. Wait, I'll go with you and show you the way. I've gotta go up there anyway. Miss Madison, she wants me to put this pink glass vase up there. She thinks it's too old-fashioned. Here's the room, sir, and here's the books that was took off Mr. Harley's bookcase when it was moved."

A shelf of books claimed Stone's attention, and he stooped down to look them over. The room was a sort of lumber room, and was full of discarded furniture and pictures and old-fashioned ornaments. Stone delved into the books and Hetty went back to her work.

His eyes brightened as he discovered some old detective stories. He kept on until he found the one he had hoped for. An old book, published in one of the earliest years of the century. Its name was "The Mystery of Carstairs Court."

Stone smiled as he remembered how the words crime or murder were not allowed in book titles then. He rifled the pages until he found the passage he wanted. Yes, just as he had remembered; the victim in the book, was killed in precisely the same way that Harley Madison had been killed.

Craig had referred to the book. Did that incriminate Craig, or did it clear him from suspicion? Surely, had he been responsible for Harley Madison's unusual, almost unique death, he would not have mentioned a source book.

* * *

Acting on a sudden impulse, Stone left his room and crossed the hall to Harley Madison's room again. Hetty was still there, putting the finishing touches to the new immaculate room.

"Looks nice, don't it, Mr. Stone?" she said, always avid for justly earned praise.

"It does, Hetty; it sure does. Will any one use the room now?"

"I don't think so. But Miss Madison, she ain't thinkin' of such matters now. She's worried to death, and I know what ails her."

"What is it?"

"I don't know for sure, but I think that District Attorney Sutton, he said some little thing that hinted, sorta, at Craig. You know he's the apple of her eye."

"More than Sheldon?"

"Well, yes. She thinks she treats those boys just alike, and seemin'ly she does. But I can see lots of little ways she has, that tell me she cares most for Craig. Not that she means to be partial. She don't know herself, that she favors Craig so. Mr. Tom, he sees it, but he's such a dear chap, he don't take no offense."

"You cleaned this room just now, Hetty. Tell me, did you find any little thing that seemed to be——"

"Clueses!" exclaimed Hetty. "Do you know, Mr. Stone, I was lookin' for 'em all the time!"

"And did you?"

* * *

Stone was looking at Hetty; and he could read plainly her sudden change of thought. She quite evidently had found something, and was about to tell him of it, when some impulse told her not to

There was a pause, and then she said, hesitantly:

"Why, Mr Stone! Whatever do you mean?"

"Yes, you are. You enjoy lying, for its own sake. Look at the lies you're always telling about your brother-in-law."

"I don't get you," she said simply. "Mr. Stone, I never told a lie about my brother-in-law!"

"Well, then he's a very strange human being. A short time ago, you told me your brother-in-law died when he was a baby. Also, I have heard you tell that he died of streptococus, and at another time of heart trouble. And very recently you told me he was murdered in cold blood. Those stories can't all be true, Hetty."

"Explain yourself."

"Certa'nly, sir. You see I am one of a family of seven—all girls. My sisters are all married, and whatever I said happened to my brother-in-law, did happen to one of my sister's husbands."

"Hetty, you're a wonder! And what about the brother-in-law who died when he was a baby? He hadn't married one of your sisters then?"

"Oh, that was my husband's brother. Elkanah had four brothers, they bein' of course, my brother-in-law. And Elk's brother, who dies when he was a baby, you may say, I s'pose, that he wasn't my brother-in-law then. But I hold that all my husband's brothers are my brothers-in-law, dead or alive."

"All right, Hetty; I'm glad you have relieved my mind about that matter. I thought you were inventing tales."

"Not me! I'm a born truth-teller."

"Oh, you are, are you? Then why did you lie just now, and say you didn't find any little clue in this room, when you know you did?"

* * *

She made several attempts to speak, and then said, brokenly:

"It was such a silly thing. I'm sure it didn't mean anything."

"What is it?" Stone spoke kindly, and Hetty plucked up spirit.

"All right, then, I'll tell you—I'll show you"

She crossed the room, and came back with a small vase, which she turned over on the table and a cigarette stub fell out.

Stone looked so disappointed, that Hetty tried to defend herself.

"I thought cigaret stubs were the best and important clueses of all. They are in story books."

"Well you know. That Darling of Satan, Mrs. Boyce."

"Yes, sir. I cleaned the vase, and then I put the stub back, thinkin' it might interest you."

"It shows that Mrs. Boyce was probably in this room one day, and that she was smoking, and that she carelessly threw the stub of her cigaret in the nearest receptacle."

"Doesn't it prove Mrs Boyce came in here in the night and killed Mr. Madison with a knitting needle?"

"I think not. You see, if she did do that terrible deed, she would hardly be smoking while she did it. You don't think her guilty, do you, Hetty?"

"I don't know, Mr. Stone. It could be."

"That she did! She liked him so much she couldn't abear to see that Hollywood runagate snatch him away from her."

"But Mr. Madison had no notion of marrying Mrs. Boyce."

"He hadn't—yet But the lady was working hard to bring him to her feet, and she thought she was about to succeed."

"How do you know all this?"

"Us women sense these things, when men can't suspicion them at all."

"That—that's all, sir."

"I don't believe you, Hetty; I still think you are concealing something. I've no more time to talk to you now, but think it over, and make up your mind to bring me the thing you found"

Hetty's white face and trembling hands, made Stone feel sure he was right, and that Hetty would soon confess her deceit.

"Remember," he said, "if you are concealing a clue, you are compounding a felony."

"My sakes, Mr. Stone, what does that mean?"

"It means you'll be arrested and tried and convicted and put in jail!"

"There's worse things than jail," said Hetty, and Stone realized that her secret, whatever it might be, was of real importance.

* * *

A drive was planned for the afternoon. Cornelia said there must be some little diversion for Avis, or Yvette's assumed name, or she would drift into melancholy. In fact there was more likelihood of Cornelia doing the drifting, for she was really becoming ill from the excitement, the suspense and the awfulness of the situation.

She had stated her intense desire to find the criminal, but the baffling search, resulting in nothing, was wearing on her nerves, and she told Sutton that she was almost willing for him to give up and have the case declared impossible of solution.

THEATERS

FOR the second time in its history Hollywood had a premiere which cost $10 a seat. It was the opening the other night of "Hollywood Cavalcade," which is the first film about the industry which neither satirizes or criticizes it. The other $10 premiere was DeMille's "King of Kings" in 1927. The Cavalcade shows the progress of the industry from the first reelers, through the Keystone Kops-custard pie, to the first talkies and right up to the present. One of the "cut-backs" will show Al Jolson singing "Kol Nidre" in "The Jazz Singer," the first talkie. The story in the film depicts some of the real love affairs and tragedies of the film capital. Don Ameche and Alice Faye have the leading roles.

* * *

Famous Story Re-Filmed.

Percival Christopher Wren's stirring story of brotherly love and the Foreign Legion comes back to the screen for the second time. "Beau Geste," once made as an "epic" silent film, has been remade as a talking picture, with Gary Cooper as Beau of the Geste brothers. Ray Milland plays John Geste and Robert Preston is seen as Digby. Susan Hayward has the role of the girl which was played by Mary Brian in the Ronald Colman picture. "Beau Geste" is one of the most dramatic stories of the Foreign Legion in recent years. The cast is a long one, with many famous supporting players. It opens at the Ohio tomorrow.

* * *

Park Bench to Park Avenue.

And now we have Ginger Rogers, who scored heavily in "Bachelor Mother" as a park bench "steno" whom Dame Fortune leads into a parkside mansion. Installed as a mystery pal of the master of the mansion, she develops into a matrimonial trouble shooter. This romantic comedy, "Fifth Avenue Girl," comes to the Madison tomorrow. Supporting Miss Rogers is James Ellison, Walter Connolly, Verree Teasdale, young Tim Holt and Franklin Pangborn.

* * *

Gene to the Rescue.

Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette are called into action by Ma Hutchins when there is a threat to sell off the public grazing lands on which every rancher in the valley is dependent. But you can bet that Gene and Smiley do the right thing by Ma, not to mention the pretty girl in the story. "Mountain Rhythm" is one of the Ritz attractions for today and tomorrow. "The Hound of The Baskerville" with Basil Rathbone and Richard Greene is also being shown there.

* * *

Murder and Politics.

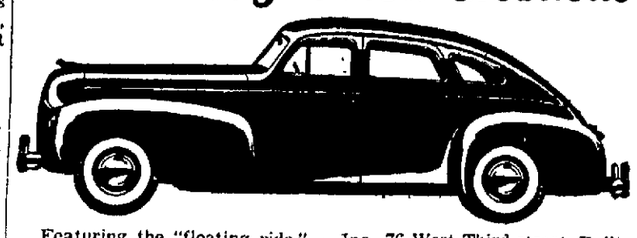
A mystery theme and a political war provide the themes for the two pictures at the Park. In "Murder Is News" a wealthy business man is murdered at a night club, but after the word is telephoned to police the body disappears. A reporter-columnist has a lot of excitement finding the body and the murderer. In "Beware of Ladies," pretty Judith Allen, the former Mrs. Jack Doyle, also plays a newspaper reporter. She is called into action by her paper when a woman's wits are needed in a political scandal.

* * *

Action At Majestic.

Cattle rustlers at the Circle A ranch give former Texas Ranger Charles Starrett something to do in "Rider of Black River," a Majestic attraction. Iris Meredith is seen as the girl in the Western romance. The second picture is "Behind Prison Gates" in which Brian Donlevy, as a special investigator, goes to prison to secure evidence in a case which puzzles his chief, the district attorney. But getting into jail is a lot easier, he finds, than getting out.

One of Dodge's New Creations



Featuring the "floating ride," the new Dodge four-door Luxury Liner is one of the 1940 Dodge models on display at the showrooms of Colby and Earick, Inc., 76 West Third street. Built on the latest idea in spring suspension, the "floating ride" is said to give the sensation of riding on air.

VICTIM JOKES OVER PLIGHT AS BODY TURNS TO STONE

When visitors see him at the St. Vincent hospital he dares them to turn his head. They try and fail. Van Schyndle's head is as solid as a rock. In fact, it is becoming rock.

Van Schyndle is slowly becoming petrified — victim of a creeping disease which has puzzled physicians. They have progressed little beyond classifying it with a long Latin name—"myositis ossificans progressiva."

Despite his position among the ranks of the living dead, Van Schyndle has a cheerful mien and an untroubled philosophy. He combines this with a macabre wit as is illustrated by his request to try moving his head. When efforts fail he remarks:

"I am a true blockhead."

The only external organs the "man of stone" is able to move are the voluntary muscles which control the eyes, mouth, wrists and fingers.

Says Health's Excellent.

However, Van Schyndle boasts that he has excellent health. He asserts:

"I haven't had a stomach ache or other ache during the past few years.

"The doctors and nurses held me to a fruit diet for a while, but it didn't seem to help; so since then I've eaten lots of everything.

"My last pill went down the hatch on Jan. 13, 1931."

The patient's blood stream is depositing layer after layer of calcium in place of tissues. Doctors say he will die when the hardening process strikes a vital organ, and they give him only a few years, at most, to live.

Van Schyndle has been suffering from the disease for 22 years and has spent more than 13 years in the hospital. When the ailment was noticed in 1914, he went to Montana in an unsuccesful effort to halt its spread.

One of the most astounding things about this man is that he manages to earn a living. He does it by knitting sweaters, pillow covers, doilies and similar objects. His stock is then placed on a movable stand and the patient is wheeled out into the hall to sell his wares to other patients.

Included among objects on his stand are religious pieces, and in these he does a brisk trade.

Uses Hand Loom.

Van Schyndle has fashioned a miniature hand loom on which he works. He also has taught another bedridden patient, Louis E. Nejedio, 80, Green Bay, to knit.

"Louis helps me in making the goods," Van Schyndle said. "He's kind of a crocheting partner.

"We have regular knitting bees, but we get done faster than the women folks."

With the aid of long-handled knives and forks, the patient is able to eat his meals—which are as large as the normal person consumes—without assistance except for drinking tea or coffee.

"There used to be pillows on my bed," Van Schyndle relates unhesitantly bringing out facts about his strange life, "but they were a nuisance, as I couldn't feel them anyway; so they were taken off."

ROBIN ANSWERS WHISTLE

WEST HARTFORD, Conn.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Carl G. Hall nursed an injured robin to health and the bird adopted her home as its own. The robin likes to fly around in the trees nearby, but when she whistles it dashes back into the house through an open window.

MRS. CHARLES LOGSDON

Giving full credit to Vendol for relieving troubles that had bothered her for years, Mrs. Charles Logsdon, residing on Oak St., Route 5, Mansfield, whose husband is a Sheet Metal Worker at the Art-Rattan Co., gives Vendol one of the most enthusiastic public recommendations yet received for this celebrated Root, Herb, Alkaline medicine, as follows:

"For years I had suffered from constipation, which caused almost intolerable acid indigestion, gassy stomach, and such bloating that my abdomen felt as tight as a drum at times. I was so nervous that I couldn't sit long in one place, any sharp noise would make me jump, and my sleep was light and easily broken.

"I frequently took such medicines, as salts, oil, or other purgatives to keep me going, but this was weakening after a long period.

"I heard a lot about Vendol from friends who had taken it, and often read in the papers what men and women here in our home town said Vendol dir for them So, I got a bottle along with a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets, and I want to state that I found Vendol as good as they said it was, and my improvement began with the first bottle.

"Vendol relieved my constipation in the most satisfactory manner, then my appetite improved; I eat anything now, without gas, sour stomach, or bloating later, and feel splendid in every way. I haven't needed a purgative since I started on Vendol, and my nerves have calmed down so that I enjoy delightful, restful sleep.

"I want to advise everyone with the same troubles from the same cause as mine to get Vendol without delay."

Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this celebrated medicine that is doing so much good in this city and nearby communities. Vendol is sold by all leading druggists.

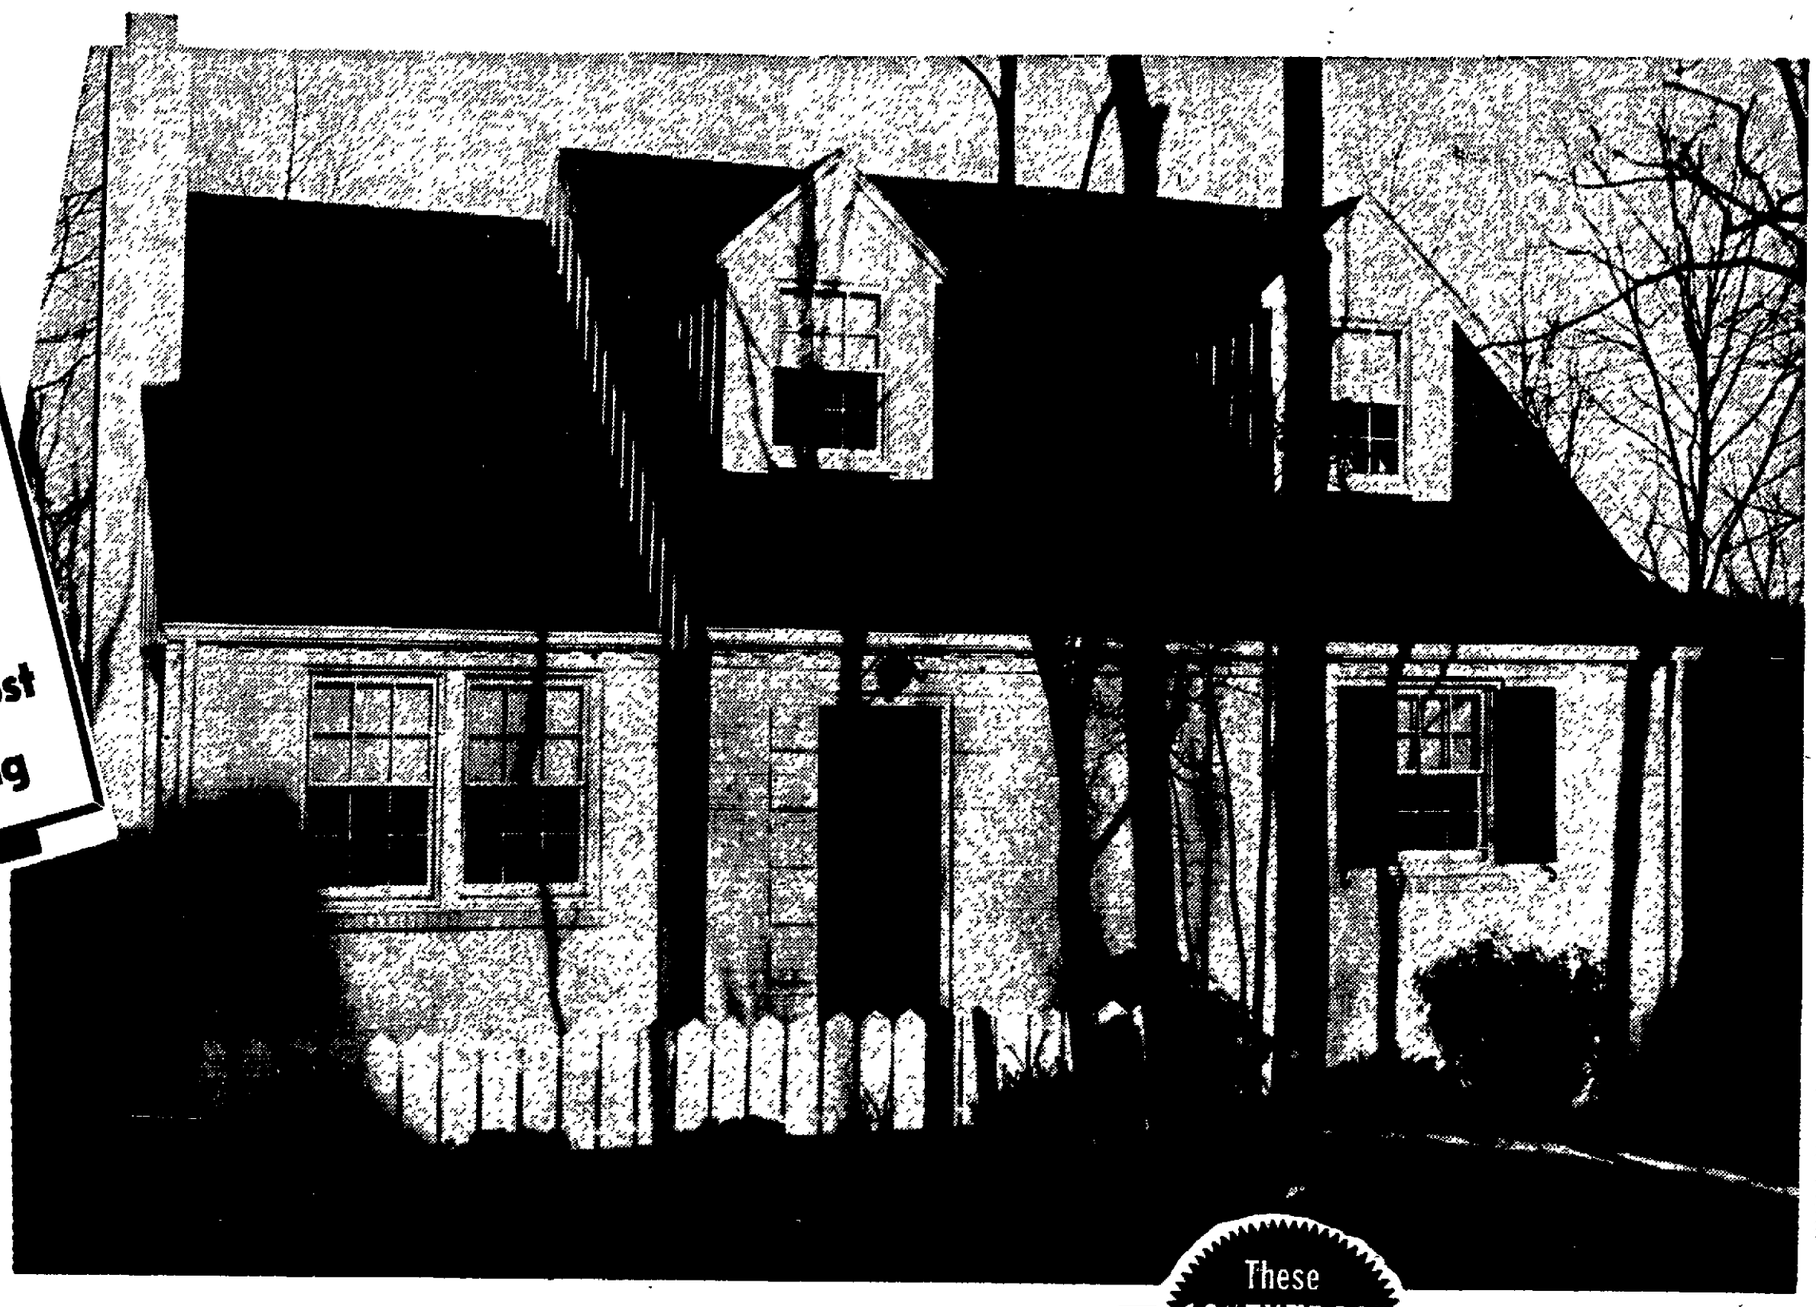
YOUR RENT MONEY WILL BUY THIS HOME!

. . . Today Learn How Easily You Can Build or Buy!



And It Can Be Bought For Only

$38.56 A MONTH

With Today's Low-Cost Long Term Financing

Imagine . . . Paying Rent to Yourself-- And Owning the Home in 25 Years!

Have you been yearning to own your own home?

Are you tired of the uncertainty of renting? Of accumulating nothing but rent receipts? Rent receipts never paid for a new home, but the money you spend each month on rent can buy or build you a new home to fit your income.

Have you been wondering whether now is the right time to build? If you've been hesitating about building, then you'll welcome the news that 1939 homes are the biggest bargain anybody's money can buy.

New manufacturing methods are partly responsible —lower material and labor costs plus the development of new low-cost materials have contributed to lower home construction costs.

But not only are home costs lower—you actually get more value per dollar in increased comfort, safety and convenience.

Your house will be far easier to finance. There never was a time when it was so easy to FINANCE a home. Interest rates are low. Long term financing makes possible small monthly payments within even the ordinary budget. Cost of financing in many cases is as much as 85 per cent less than formerly.

Your house will be better designed. Great strides have been made by the better architects and builders of the country in designing homes to eliminate waste space and to make them more attractive.

Your house will be better built. Great strides have been made in the precision with which homes are built, as a result . . .

Your house will be more comfortable. Insulation, improved heating plants, air conditioning have given the modern house comfort that was never dreamed of ten years ago.

Your house will be more economical. Many materials have been developed which have eliminated items of expensive upkeep that were looked upon as a necessary evil of home ownership just a few years ago.

Your house will be more efficient. It will have better kitchen planning, with new and improved labor-saving devices, built-in fixtures that remove the word drudgery from housekeeping, and better room arrangement that eliminates many of the errors of construction that meant added burdens to the housewife.

Your house will be safer. Fire-resistant insulation and building materials, healthier atmospheric conditions; all help minimize the hazards of the past . . . and with all this—

Any one of the companies listed below, any architect, builder, realtor, lumber or building materials dealer, will be glad to furnish complete information and literature on America's No. 1 value—a new home.

Jockey Don Meade Aids Extortion Suspect's Capture

FOILS SCHEME OF KIDNAPERS IN HECTIC DAY

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Jockey Don Meade was kidnaped by two men who threatened his baby's life, but he rode five horses, including one winner, before helping police capture one of the alleged extortionists—all in 20 hours.

His adventures started at 4 a. m. yesterday when he left a card party at the apartment of a friend. Two men, one armed, ordered him into his car. One drove it. They took his pocket money and then told him his seven-weeks-old adopted son had been kidnaped. It would cost him $4,000 to see his baby again.

Show Nipple as 'Proof.'

Meade didn't believe them, and said so. The gunman held up a bottle nipple, and said:

"This is the baby's."

Meade still wasn't sure. They argued and Meade finally agreed to give them $2,000. They set a rendezvous for last evening.

After his abductors freed him, Meade drove home and found his wife and son safe. He reported to police and was told to keep the rendezvous. He went out to Belmont park, rode four losers and brought home a winner in the seventh race yesterday afternoon.

At 7 p. m. he was in his car at the meeting place. Another automobile came alongside. The driver shouted, "follow me."

They raced for 10 blocks, and stopped. The alleged extortionist, Carlo Zarcone, 20, went to Meade's car, snatched an envelope from him and got back into his car. He did not examine the envelope, which contained only a few bank notes and a wad of paper.

Four detectives were watching Zarcone snapped off his lights, started the motor and jerked at the gear arm. It broke. He jumped from his car, ran through a yard, leaped a hedge, the detectives after him. They caught him after a short chase.

Zarcone was charged with extortion today. Police said he admitted his complicity, but insisted he did not know the identity of his accomplice.

A. F. of L. Order To Formally Suspend Typo Union Nears

CINCINNATI—(UP)—The A. F. of L. executive council probably will take affirmative action at the close of the federation's annual convention, informed union officials said today, for formal suspension of the International Typographical union, one of its oldest affiliates.

The convention yesterday refused to seat the ITU's delegates because the union declined to pay the special assessment levied in 1937 to raise a so-called "war chest" in the battle with John L. Lewis's CIO.

ITU President Claude M. Baker and high officers of the federation agreed that the vote against seating the delegates was tantamount to suspending the ITU's affiliation with the AFL dating back over 50 years to the founding of the federation.

Legal experts in the A. F. of L. said the ITU suspension became effective two years ago under a clause in the federation constitution which provides that if a union is in arrears on tax or assessment, "it shall become suspended."

STEAMER SUNK

Another British Ship Falls Victim To Submarine Warfare.

LONDON—(AP)—The ministry of information announced today that the British steamer Glenfarg, 876 tons, had been sunk by a submarine.

The announcement added that the crew had been picked up and landed but one man had died of wounds. The number of the crew was not announced.

Chief Criticizes Schools for Fire Hazards

Up and Down THE STREET

Senior high girls went hunting today—not for squirrels but for a piano. They sought someone who would contribute a used piano to their gym classes as the old "music box" they had is no longer serviceable. Piano music is used for folk dancing which is a part of the gym class routine.

All out of breath, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch showed up at the reception for new citizens several minutes late last night, explaining that he had gone to the wrong place to make his speech. "I stood around over at the courthouse wondering where the crowd was when the custodian told me the party was at the American Legion home, so that's why I'm late," he said. He cut his speech short to make up for the time he lost hunting for the reception.

The "lights are out" as far as the 86-piece Crestline high school band rated as one of the best marching units in the state, is concerned. The "blackout" number that Mansfielders say literally stole the show from the gridders at previous games will be discontinued. A little light bulb was attached to each musician's cap and they made quite a sight when the field lights were turned off. A new battery required for each musician every night the stunt was staged made the cost prohibitive, school officials said.

Most fishermen would sneer at a pickerel that only weighed a pound and a quarter—but there are times when a puny little thing like that isn't to be sneezed at. Ask Howard Hossler, if you don't believe it. He and four other Mansfielders—Joy Herbert, Carl Russell, Herbert Slough and Reynolds Hodgson—went fishing off the Lake Erie reefs the other day, and before they started, each contributed to a "pot" to be divided at the end of the day among the fishermen who had caught the first fish, the biggest fish and the most fish. At the end of the day, four disgusted fishermen watched Hossler collect, all on the strength of a pickerel weighing a pound and a quarter. It was the first fish caught, the biggest fish caught and the "most" fish caught. No one else got anything.

AWAITS RUSH OF REGISTRATIONS

Election Board to Stay Open to 8:30 P. M. Daily Until Deadline Monday.

The county board of elections began an "overtime" schedule today in order to handle the flood of registrations and transfers for the November municipal election.

The office in the basement of the courthouse will remain open until 8:30 p. m. today, Saturday and Monday to permit registering and transferring after working hours, board officials said.

Deadline for registration for the Nov. 7 election is 8:30 p. m. Monday. Until then, the election board office will be open through the noon hour in addition to the extra time in the evening. The office opens at 8 a. m.

With both political parties conducting drives for registrations, several hundred Mansfielders have registered or transferred in the past two weeks. More than 16,000 voters were registered today, and it was expected that the total would reach 18,000 or 19,000 by Monday night. The record is about 19,500 preceding the school bond election last year.

Persons who have moved since they voted last must transfer, and registration is required of all residents of voting age in the city who are not already registered.

MRS. SPAYDE, ILL YEAR, DIES AT 67

Mrs. Flora B. Spayde, 67, wife of Henry L. Spayde, died at her home east of Little Washington Thursday after an illness of a year. She was born near Springmill, Oct. 6, 1871, and spent her entire life in this vicinity.

The survivors include two sons, Samuel of Bellville and Charles of Crestline; three daughters, Mrs. Wayne McFarland of Madison township, Mrs. Faye Ramsey of Lima and Mrs. Donald Donough of Washington township; a sister, Mrs. Clarence Pierce of Wakeman; a brother, Charles Brandt of Pittsburgh, and 20 grandchildren. She was a member of the Little Washington Congregational church.

Funeral services will be held at the Little Washington church at 2 p. m. Monday, with burial in the Bellville cemetery. The body will be at the Wappner funeral home until the time of services.

Members of the Mansfield Photographic Society have arranged a picnic for Sunday, and have invited members of other clubs to join them in feasting and making color pictures, club officials announced today.

The picnic will be held at Mohican State park, with Mansfield host to clubs from Ashland, Shelby, Mt. Vernon, Loudonville and Lima.

Welcome To—

ENGINEER DIES

CRESTLINE—John C. Beaver, 52, railway engineer, died at his home this morning after a four-day illness.

Mr Beaver had been employed by the Pennsylvania railroad company for 38 years, and at the time of his death was chairman of the Crestline unit of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers. He was born in Crestline.

Surviving are his wife, Frances; a daughter, Miss Catherine Beaver of Columbus, and three sisters, Mrs. Ella Harrop and Mrs. Sue Felton of Mansfield, and Mrs. Tillie Tyler of California.

He was a member of the Galion Elks lodge, past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus of Crestline, and a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church. Funeral services will be held at the church Monday morning with Rev. F. A. Slattery officiating.

'MARCHING MEN OF SONG' OPEN ENTERTAINMENT SERIES TONIGHT

The first of four entertainments sponsored by the Public Parks association will be presented at First Congregational church at 8:15 p. m. today when Phil Clark's Marching Men of Song, appear there.

This quartet of male singers is famous for its military precision in singing. All of their song groups are done in costume. One of the most popular features of their concert is the group of outdoor songs which is done in the costume of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police.

Of the sailor's group—in "gob" costumes—the hit song is "We Saw The Sea."

Tonight's concert is the first of the series of programs which will be presented on successive Friday nights by the parks association. The entire project is a part of the association's plan to raise funds for the next Fourth of July celebration and other community activities sponsored by the parks group.

Next Friday night Clarence W. Sorenson, traveler and lecturer, will give an account of a dramatic adventure which took him over the caravan trails of Arabia, sometimes traveling with princes and sometimes with beggars. He illustrates his talk with motion pictures.

On Friday, Oct. 20, the Di Crosta-Ferrari company presents "Musical Moments," and on Oct. 27, the final event will be given. This will be the Collins Players in the drama "Youth Carries A Torch."

GIVEN PLAQUE

Former Head of Model Plane Club Honored at Dinner.

Presentation of the Frank Lahm plaque and awarding of second class pins to 13 boys were made at the annual dinner meeting of the Frank Lahm Cadets, model airplane club, last night at the Y. M. C. A.

The plaque, given each year to the boy doing the most outstanding work in model airplane work, went to Selwyn Copeland, club president last year. The plaque is donated by Col. Frank Lahm, after whom the club is named. Presentation was made by E. C. Peat, adviser.

Committee chairmen named were Darrell Nichols, display; Herbert Hamilton, decorations, and Miles Wickett, contests. New officers installed were Ben Gerhart, president; Douglas Wright, vice president; Richard Mumford, secretary; Henry Ford, treasurer, and William Fay, librarian.

"I'm so glad I caught you in, doctor. I want a thorough examination."

HITS FAILURE TO INSTALL 'PANIC BOLTS' ON EXITS

Recommendations Made Year Ago, Seeburger Says as He Finishes Inspection.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger completing the annual inspection of schools today criticized school authorities for "laxity" in not installing "panic bolts" on fire doors as recommended a year ago.

Accompanied by Deputy State Fire Marshal Gayle Owens, the chief during the past two days inspected eight grade schools and the senior high school for fire hazards.

He asserted today that seven of the nine schools lacked "panic bolts" on fire exit doors and that at one school yesterday a main entrance door could not be opened "with ease" during a fire drill.

He criticized the janitor at Newman school where the entrance door "was not working properly" for failure to keep the exit in good working order.

Says Door Repaired.

"This was something that was a definite hazard to several hundred school children and for which there could be no excuse," he said.

Immediate repairs to the door were made, he added.

The schools where the "bolts" had not been installed on the fire exit doors he said were Newman, Carpenter, West Fifth, Brinkerhoff, and parts of Bushnell, Hedges and Bowman.

Only three buildings, all of recent construction, passed inspection 100 per cent, Seeburger said. They were the Senior high school, Woodland and Western avenue.

J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings said that some of the bolts had been purchased and a few had been installed but that he had been busy with the new construction program and that he "didn't know when" he could get them installed.

Recommendations were made last fall by Seeburger that all fire exits in all buildings in the city school system be equipped with the "panic bolts" to provide adequate fire protection for pupils.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Gives Ham Fish a Bit of Space for Answer To an Earlier Column

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Representative Ham Fish writes that he is amazed plus astonished, at my recent memoirs of a day, when, to hear me tell it, he was fixing to use, in a speech in his district, which includes the homes of President Roosevelt and the president's mother, two unconfirmed bits about those distinguished constituents.

These tips came in his fan mail, one to the effect that Mrs James Roosevelt had received $35,000 from the Federal government for the repairs and maintenance of her home at Hyde Park while the president used it as a summer home, the other that James Roosevelt, the president's late father, provided in his will that Franklin should have no hand in the management of the estate because it was his belief that the future president had no ability to handle money.

* * *

The latter report I later received from so many scattered sources that I investigated the will, on file at Poughkeepsie, and found that it was just one of those lies which take off into space and, in many cases, never are shot down.

Anyone who wants to check this can do so, but the information about the maintenance of the house wasn't so easily come at—just then, anyway—for Fish himself, when he attempted to dip an oar into the congressional investigation of tax avoidance and evasion, had been told that he musn't bring the president's tax return into question. So I never investigated and therefore never mentioned the one about the house either, and considered it to be out of bounds until Steve Early did a piece for the Saturday Evening Post in which he mentioned it to deny it.

* * *

All this is just overture to create a mood for Ham's say in reply to mine, which is that "the only basis of truth in your column is that I showed you some letters that were on my desk that had reached me that day requesting me to look into these charges. I asked the ways and means committee for this information. I pride myself on the fact that I do not make statements carelessly and check every detail carefully before accepting the facts, as I know that anything that I might say that cannot be substantiated would weaken the balance of my argument. It seems that some of the columnists are much more careless with facts than men in public life, who know that the slightest deviation from the facts defeats the cause which they are upholding. In all fairness I would appreciate it if you would have my reply published in the newspapers that carry your column."

Mr. Fish is nice enough, anyway, to suggest that my memory, not necessarily my honesty, is at fault, and adds that if my memory had been a little better I would recall that he said he didn't believe the charges but would ascertain the facts.

* * *

Now, this discussion arose from an admonition to the public delivered by Mr. Fish per radio to beware of unreliable war news which might be propaganda and my rejoinder that, as of this particular experience with Mr. Fish, I thought he might look at some spots on his own vest.

So it comes down now to a test of memory, in which I totally flunk any recollection of his saying that he didn't believe the charges but would ascertain the facts.

On the contrary, my memory is distinct on the point of his suggesting that, even though the reports were not confirmed, it would be possible to use them, anyway, with such escape phrases as "it is believed" and "it is reported" and that he had already prepared to use them in a speech.

* * *

He says I came to him for information to be used against the Roosevelts—which is not quite correct, the fact being that I was following up the income tax wrangle in which he participated and the complaint of Representative Treadway of Massachusetts that he had not been permitted to subject Jimmy Roosevelt's tax returns to the same expert inspection that had been applied to the returns of men who were political opponents of the New Deal.

I was doing a job of reporting, and my eye, ear and nose for legitimate material, as distinguished from trash, may be judged by the fact that I never touched either of the items that Mr. Fish had that day and as I contend and he doesn't remember, pointed out to him that this matter, lacking any proof, was not permissible by newspaper standards.

In general, I claim that newspaper standards are higher than those of congress, if for no other reason that our lack of immunity. I admit, however, that, as he says, "Some of the columnists are much more careless with facts than men in public life," but only with a one-word amendment. I make it "some men in public life," but indorse his warning that news, and especially news pictures, may be tainted and conjure statesmen to observe in debate and in the record the same standards that they would require of American journalism.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Two careers in the same family: Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements.

She was a movie publicity woman who had taken up short-story writing and scenarios. He was a stage-crazy fellow who had been to the war and was back again in the theater, directing plays and staging them. He was doing it at Santa Barbara.

A well-meaning relative wanted to bring them together. They hated each other like poison—without ever meeting—for that reason. Once they met at the W. M. R.'s house, by accident, and they didn't hate each other so much. They got themselves engaged.

Practically at the same time, they got themselves assigned to co-author a scenario called "Wife vs. Secretary." This was 13 years ago. It was to be a silent movie about careers for women. They argued so violently that they broke the engagement. Colin thought slightly differently about careers for women. The scenario was shelved, the engagement revived.

* * *

For 13 years of marriage and literary partnership they have been one of the town's most successful and prolific teams.

Three days a week Miss Ryerson goes to the studio where she is under contract. Colin Clements stays home to write. Their home is Shadow Ranch, a jewel of a spot half an hour from Hollywood. 10 acres with dogs, monkeys, birds, rabbits, flowers, fruit and trees. Miss Ryerson's son Hal (and Clements' son by adoption) also lives there.

The house, to which they've just added another wing, was originally built in 1869 and was a tumble-down relic when they started remodeling. Now it's a show-place, comfortable, roomy, home-like, not too large, but large enough to accommodate two careers and one marriage.

According to Colin: "She writes—and I'm the editor. We thresh everything out first, talking it over at length, before we go to work."

According to Florence Ryerson: "We fight like mad over every point—and then we put it down, go over it together."

According to Colin: "When she wants to do one thing and I want to start another—she always wins. She's a woman. She cries."

According to F. R.: "When he wants to do one thing, and I want to start another—he always wins. He's a man. He has his own way."

* * *

They keep fairly regular working hours. Their one-act plays ("as good as $1,000 invested at 4 per cent," one of them said) are enacted in schools, little theaters, churches all over the country.

They have practically "retired" from Hollywood. Once a week, on Sunday, they have open house for friends. They don't try to mix gadding with writing.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Harry Underwood opened the door of my father's room to his wife's knock and beckoned us both into the room.

"I mustn't keep you, my darling," he said, loosening his clasp of me and extending one hand to Lillian, who murmured, "Goodbye, Chief," and then hurried out of the door with her husband. My father looked after them fondly.

"Blessed people," he said. "They knew I wanted to have the last minutes with you." Then he put his arms around me again and, as always in these farewells, I felt my father's benediction reaching out to protect me in whatever hazard I might face.

"God bless you and keep you, my darling," he murmured as he released me. "Harry knows everything that must be done. Follow his directions, and under no circumstances permit yourself to be separated from Lillian, even for a minute. And I know that your mission will be successful. Bring Richard back with you, and give him my love. Good-bye."

"We're to go right down to the car," Lillian said. "Harry will follow us down as soon as he has received a final direction or two from your father."

She kept up a constant stream of chatter all the way downstairs, and even when we got into the car. I already had bidden the children and my mother-in-law casual farewells, telling them I would be back in three days, so there was nothing for me to do save get hold of myself after my emotional farewell to my father, always an ordeal to me.

Our journey to the city in the Underwood car was uneventful, and the guard who accompanied us drove the car, under Harry's direction, to the apartment hideaway of my father. There they turned me over to the care of Gus and Nellie, and then went on in the car to a destination which they did not announce to me. They informed me they would be back within the hour, and advised me to take a nap until their return.

I was too excited to sleep at first, but finally I drifted off into slumber and did not awaken until Lillian laid her hand upon my wrist.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"I'll tell you as soon as we've had a cup of tea," she said. "Nellie has it already prepared, so as soon as you're ready we'll discuss it. Harry scorns anything so weak as tea and is refreshing himself elsewhere."

"I am wild with curiosity," I said, and meant it.

"I'll gratify some of it right away," she said. "You know, of course, that Harry has an apartment in which he keeps not only his collection of theatrical programs and photographs, a most valuable collection, but also costumes and make-up of all sorts, so that he can fix up almost any sort of disguise for himself or anyone with him."

"Yes, I know," I said.

"As my son says, 'Okay'," I told her, smiling, and then Nellie effectively stopped all conversation with her voluble chatter while she served us tea, tiny sandwiches and little cakes. I was too excited to eat, but Lillian insisted that I drink the tea and swallow a sandwich before she would release me. And then Harry Underwood's knock sounded on the door, and I knew that our adventure in rescuing Dicky was taking tangible shape.

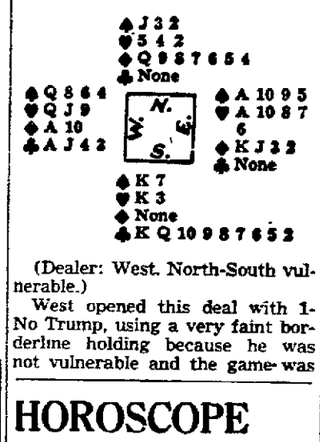
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET AN OSTRACIZER

THERE OUGHT to be some kind of a machine which can be bought about just like a typewriter, an adding machine or a cash register, but which automatically ostracizes people who deliberately do unethical things at the bridge table. If there were, every bridge club should buy one of them. Unfortunately, there is no such contraption, so we still find people in some otherwise fine clubs who do not understand the difference between good and bad ethics.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West opened this deal with 1-No Trump, using a very faint borderline holding because he was not vulnerable and the game was duplicate. East responded with 2-Hearts and the "clever" South saw the likelihood that his opponents would get into a game. He decided he would stop them, but did not wish to risk his partner taking him out into diamonds. So he made an insufficient bid of 2-Diamonds. When attention was called to the insufficiency he shifted to 3-Clubs, his partner being barred from participation in further bidding. West doubled this and it was made, with the loss of one trick in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs.

Later on the South player confided to a friend that he had made the insufficient bid intentionally to keep his partner from causing trouble. Should not a good friend admonish him not to do that again?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, October 7

A condition of mixed influences is noted in this day's astrological setup. There are predictions of happiness, success, promotion and fulfilled ambitions, both in business and private affiliations. But at the same time there are indications of stubborn obstacles, frustrations, delays and disappointments, and there is a danger of aggravating this adverse situation by reckless, quarrelsome and impetuous conduct. There is also a menace through papers, writings, trickery and fraud. With restraint, precaution and sagacity, there is prospect of an outstanding stroke of good fortune and a great sentimental pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured that the successful culmination of events rests in their own individual hands, as there is definite opportunity for advancement, fulfilled ambitions and personal gratification. However, these may be negatived by impetuosity, quarrels, rash acts and by carelessness in handling papers or documents. Indomitable will and sound acumen must be brought to bear on this frustrating situation. High romance may be an incentive for such resolute behavior.

A child born on this day may be ardent, impetuous, wayward, perverse and indomitable, but also generous, extravagant and popular. Early training might iron out such conflicts of a truly noble nature.
